U.N. Security Council Adjourns After Stormy Six-Hour Session Without Settling Franco Issue

Russia Defeats Three Proposals By Invoking Veto

QUESTION'S EXACT STATUS IS UNCLEAR

Evatt Says Issue Remains on Program, Spain Stands Condemned

By MAX HARRELSON

NEW YORK, June 26. (AP)—Soviet Russia invoked the veto three times tonight during a stormy and confused session of the United Nations Security Council which ended in a complete deadlock on the future status of the Spanish question.

After almost six hours of the bitterest debate ever heard at the council table, the weary delegates gave up their efforts to find a formula defining the terms under which the case would be kept on the agenda.

The council adjourned subject to call of the president after the veto of Soviet Delegate Andrei A. Gromyko had blocked action on proposals offered by Australian Delegate Herbert V. Evatt and the delegates had rejected subsequent suggestions of Gromyko.

This left the exact status unclear in the case based on Poland's charges that the Franco regime threatens world peace. Evatt said, however, that the issue was still on the agenda and that the "moral condemnation" of the Franco government still stands.

Parodi Expresses Regret

French Delegate Alexandre Parodi, expressing regret over the snarled session, said "it seems to me that those who are fighting for the freedom of Spain have less grounds to congratulate themselves than Franco and his regime."

The council gave up its efforts, for the present at least, after Gromyko used the veto for the third time to block a motion by Evatt providing that the case be kept on the agenda "without prejudice to the rights" of the General Assembly to take up the case later.

This proposal had been one of the provisions of a more comprehensive reslution offered by Evatt and defeated by Russian veto against the council majority.

Evatt's statement that the case remains on the agenda and that the council condemns the Franco regime was based on the fact that

Yosuke Matsuoka, Jap War Crimes Defendant, Dies

Ex-Foreign Minister Is Tuberculosis Victim; Charges Are Erased

TOKYO, Thursday, June 27 (AP)—Yosuke Matsuoka, former Japanese foreign minister, died early this morning in gloomy Imperial University hospital of tuberculosis—only a thin, feeble ghost of the cocky, American-educated diplomat whose Axis treaties tied Japan to a losing war.

His wife and his eldest son, Kenichiro Matsuoka, 35, were the only mourners at the beside when the 66-year-old man died. His death cancelled his scheduled entry into the parade of events before the international war crimes court in which he was a defendant.

So ill he could hardly walk and so thin he scarcely was recognizable, Matsuoka had appeared only briefly in the prisoners' dock.

The court formally announced his death today and erased the charges against him.

A graduate of the University of Oregon, Matsuoka probably was best known as Japan's negotiator in the tri-partite pact signed with Germany and Italy in 1940. He became foreign minister July 22, 1940.

Matsuoka was a veteran diplomat with long service overseas, and became a member of the Japanese Diet (parliament) in 1930. He represented Japan at the League of Nations general meeting the same year. In August, 1935, he took over presidency of the South Manchurian railway.

The tribunal president, Sir William Webb, announced that Matsuoka's name would be stricken from the indictment as a result of his death, and all charges removed. At the request of Defense Counsel Franklin D. Warren, the court ordered the body turned over to the family.

Treachery Costs Soviet Republics Their Autonomy

Many Inhabitants of Two States Fought against Russia

MOSCOW, June 26. (AP)—Two formerly autonomous Soviet republics have been deprived of their autonomy and many of their inhabitants resettled in other parts of Russia as punishment for treachery during the most critical period of the German invasion, it was disclosed officially today.

The Crimean and Chechen-Ingush autonomous Soviet socialist republics, units of the Russian Soviet Federal Socialist Republic, were abolished by decree and reduced to the status of provinces of the RSFSR.

The decree accused many Chechens and Crimean Tartars of fighting alongside the Germans against Red army units.

Almost simultaneously, the ministry of state control announced that more than a score of factory, mill and mine executives had been punished for misappropriation or misusing funds in various kinds of plants and enterprises throughout Russia.

General Is Accused

The evacuation of an undisclosed number of inhabitants of the two states and loss of autonomy were disclosed with the adoption by the Supreme Soviet of the RSFSR of decrees issued sometime previously by the presidium.

(This was the first official disclosure of wartime treachery affecting territorial units of the Soviet Union. However, Moscow accuses Gen. Andrei A. Vlassov, who was captured by the Germans in 1941 and later fought against the Red army with some thousands of his followers, of treason.

(The highest ranking units of the Soviet Union are sixteen constituent republics. Of these the largest and most important are the Russian Soviet Federal Soviet Republic — known as RSFRS — the Ukraine and White Russia.

(The RSFSR is itself a huge federation, embracing 92.7 per cent of the area of the Soviet Union. Its

Miller Gets Suspended Sentence in Slaying Of Fellow Officer

NEW YORK, June 26 (AP)—Army Capt. Archie Miller, 28, who pleaded guilty to manslaughter in the fatal shooting of his estranged wife's lover, a fellow officer, rather than have her testify, received a suspended sentence today in general sessions court.

"It is a sad day for a devoted husband with red blood in his veins not to do something about a situation like this when he comes home and finds his home violated," Judge John A. Mullen told the Bellevue, Tex., veteran of three years overseas service.

"I am going to give you a suspended sentence and place you on probation. I realize the provocation you had x x x"

Miller originally was indicted for murder after Capt. Eugene Dale, 27, survivor of the Bataan death march, was shot in the apartment of Miller's estranged wife, a former Powers model from Jonesboro, N. C., last December 28.

Severest Fresh Meat Shortage Of Modern Times Grows Worse

[By The Associated Press]

The severest fresh meat shortage of modern times grew worse yesterday (Wednesday).

It hit the legitimate butcher shops, black market and restaurants.

The thin run of livestock to market, already at a record low, dropped off still further as the Senate debated the fate of the OPA extension bill.

Receipts of hogs at 12 leading western markets totaled 19,300 today, compared with 26,452 a week ago and 46,842 a year ago. Total livestock receipts, which last week ran about 35 per cent below the preceding year, have fallen another 10 per cent this week.

A survey of the nation's cities brought from everywhere the same report: "Little or no fresh meat." In some cities, even cold cuts were hard to find in normal channels. Poultry and fish, however, were relatively plentiful.

The National Association of Retail Meat Dealers reported half the nation's butcher shops had closed their doors. Those operating in conjunction with groceries were open but had little or no meat, the association said:

The National Restaurant Association said "reports from all over the country" showed the fresh meat problem growing worse.

"The meat shortage has thrown a great additional burden on the restaurants, with persons dining out when they can't find meat in their butcher shops," an association spokesman said. "The restaurants are trying their best to offer something besides poultry, fish and eggs, but this is becoming increasingly more difficult."

Most industry spokesmen expected some improvement in the situation

Ministers Turn Down Molotov's Trieste Proposal

Members of British Delegation Are Impressed by Russian Plan

PARIS, Thursday, June 27 (AP) — The foreign ministers conference has rejected a Russian proposal to place disputed Trieste either under dual sovereignty or under Yugoslav sovereignty as an autonomous district, authoritative circles said today.

The proposal was advanced by Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov at a special night meeting of the four-power conference called in an attempt to find a solution to the key question of the disposition of Trieste—the Adriatic city claimed by both Italy and Yugoslavia.

Before the three-hour meeting broke up shortly after midnight United States Secretary of State James F. Byrnes said that if the foreign ministers could not settle the Trieste issue it should be referred to the 21-nation peace conference. Molotov answered it would be a mistake to disrupt the peace conference with this question.

In submitting his proposal, Molotov said Russia opposed internationalization of Trieste as proposed by Georges Bidault, French president and foreign minister.

Molotov Is Disappointed

The night meeting, the first since the ministers' first sessions last April, was summoned by Molotov and held in Byrnes's office at Luxembourg palace.

Molotov obviously was disappointed at the reception his proposals received. He presented them, both British and American sources said, as great concessions which he hoped would be given ready assent.

Members of the British delegation were visibly impressed by Molotov's proposals, and some said they saw in it a path to an agreement after another two or three days of private conversations.

The proposal showed, the Britons said, Molotov's apparent desire to reach some sort of a compromise on this issue—the major question blocking agreement on the Italian peace treaty.

Earlier, vigorous American opposition balked an attempt by Molotov to write a special commericial status for Russia into the peace treaties for the Balkan nations.

American sources said Molotov had sought unsuccessfully to include in the Romanian treaty a provision which would have exempted neighboring states, including Russia, from clauses requiring Romania to give all the Allies equal commercial status.

Agreement Is Reached

Agreement was reached by the conference on provisions requiring Romania to make restitution of looted Allied property but permitting her to negotiate directly and individually with interested nations. Informants said this clause was sent to the deputy ministers for redrafting.

The question of restoring industrial patents, literary and other rights in connection with the Romanian treaty was shelved to permit

Boos Greet Browder On His Return to U. S.

NEW YORK, June 26 (AP) —Earl Browder, former head of the Communist party in the United States, arrived here by airplane today from Russia where he was entertained by Soviet officials, and was booed by a crowd which gathered around him.

Pushing his way through the shouting people after his baggage had passed a customs inspection, Browder told newspapermen attempting to interview him:

"I am happy to see you boys again. There is no place like New York, and only New York could put on such a show as this."

Browder posed for photographers and newsreel cameramen, but refused to comment on the reception given him in Russia by Soviet leaders, including Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov.

While the crowd jostled around him and one man shouted, "Why didn't you stay in Moscow. We don't want you here," Browder declared that he had no message for American Communists. He added that he had made all his remarks to American correspondents in Moscow.

Congress Is Requested To Clear Way for Vast Super-highway Project

WASHINGTON, June 26. (AP)—Congress was asked today to clear the way for a $12,000,000,000 coast-to-coast and border-to-border network of toll super-highways.

Before the House Roads committee to press the proposal was T. E. Steiner, Wooster, Ohio, who has been sponsoring the plan since he first proposed it in 1936. The committee took no action.

The super-highways would be similar in conception to the Pennsylvania turnpike, but much more elaborate.

Under a bill by Rep. Randolph (D-WVA) to carry out Steiner's plan, the roads would be built with private capital, with the government guaranteeing investors a 2¾ per cent annual return and no losses.

Tobey Hits Back At Truman; Says Remarks Unfair

Senator Suggests President, Not He, Needs "Cooling-Off Period"

By EDWIN B. HAAKINSON

WASHINGTON, June 26 (AP)—Sen. Tobey, of New Hampshire, accused by President Truman of discouraging "good men" from entering government by emitting "yells," hit back today with a suggestion that it is the president, not he, who needs a "cooling-off period."

The New Hampshire Republican, in a speech on the Senate floor, branded unfair statements made in a barbed letter in which Mr. Truman pictured Tobey as a chronic complainer who made "unwarranted attacks" on Edwin W. Pauley, nominee for undersecretary of the navy.

Pauley's nomination was withdrawn after a fight led by Tobey. Harold L. Ickes, then secretary of the interior, testified that Pauley had suggested campaign funds could be obtained from oil men if the government would not push its claim to tidelands oil producing areas. Pauley denied the charge.

Mr. Truman's letter was written May 29 in response to a communication in which Tobey made what he called a "Macedonian cry" or appeal for help from the president in getting more grain for poultry raisers in New England.

Tobey Reads Letter

After word of the letter had been given to newsmen by Tobey's colleagues, Tobey took the floor today to read the full text to the Senate. It follows:

"Dear Senator Tobey:

"Replying to your telegram of May twenty-third, in which you say you are making a 'Macedonian cry,' it seems to me that you have been making Macedonian cries or yells ever since I have been in the White House. For what reason I never could understand.

"Your unwarranted attacks on Mr. Pauley almost ruined a good public servant. Between you and Mr. Ickes you have made it exceedingly difficult for me to get good men to fill the necessary places in the government. You are still continuing your Macedonian cries and I hope you will get a lot of pleasure out of them.

"As far as your food situation is concerned, the secretary of agriculture has been instructed to meet the situation as well as he possibly can both in New England and the Far Northwest, where the situation is exactly the same. It is a matter of chickens or people and, if it comes to a decision as to which should be kept from starving, naturally, if I make the decision, it will be the people. I don't know whether that will please you or not, but I hope it will.

"Sometime when you have reached a cooling-off period, I'd be glad to talk with you about the whole situation.

"Sincerely yours,

"(s) Harry

"Come and see me." (Handwritten)

Gallery Visitors Chuckle

As Tobey read the "come and see me" postscript, gallery visitors chuckled. Whereupon Tobey said "that was not a Mae West invitation."

He declared he was "amazed" at the letter; that it was "not the type of letter a senator would expect to receive" after he had appealed to the president.

The portion about feeding people or chickens was "not a fair remark," he said, and as for the Pauley case, Senate confirmation of presidential appointments was not a "rubber stamp" operation.

There "never was a time," he said, when confirmation of Pauley could be expected. Presidential appointments, he declared should be on such a high plane that confirmation could be anticipated.

Senate Passes Mental Health Institute Bill

WASHINGTON, June 26 (AP)—Without debate, the Senate accepted today a compromise bill setting up a national mental health institute. The compromise boosted the cost of erecting the institute at Bethesda, Md., from $4,000,000 to $6,000,000.

The bill goes now to the House for action.

Radcliffe, Defeated by O'Conor, Declines To Concede Nomination

By JOHN V. HORNER

BALTIMORE, June 26—(AP)—Gov. Herbert R. O'Conor, who was nominated in the Maryland primary election Monday as the Democratic candidate for United States Senat, appeared today to have achieved one of the most spectacular successes of his quarter-century in political life.

But 68-year-old Sen. George L. Radcliffe, whom he defeated, declined to concede the nomination.

Unofficial and incomplete returns, Radcliffe contended, cast doubt on the outcome in various counties. Furthermore, he said, he had received several reports of "irregularities" and he wanted to study the situation further before making a statement on the results.

The senator declined to specify the origin or nature of the irregularities.

Belated returns indicated that the 49-year-old governor captured 102 of the 152 votes by which a party convention will make formal nomination. He appeared to be the winner by a convention majority of better than 2 to 1.

With only 19 of the state's 1,331 precincts unreported, O'Conor polled 116,339 votes to Radcliffe's 93,670. The governor carried 12 of the 23 counties, with convention votes to taling 67, and five of Baltimore city's six legislative districts, with 35 convention votes.

Meanwhile, the late returns showed that William Preston Lane, Jr., national committeman and Hagerstown publisher, banker and lawyer, was increasing the margin by which he won the Democratic nomination for governor.

Figures for 1,299 precincts gave Lane 103,227 votes, while State Comptroller J. Millard Tawes had 84,347, and Rep. H. Streett Baldwin 48,254. The convention wote was: Lane, 85; Tawes 49; Baldwin 18.

The Hagerstownian won nine counties and five legislative districts in Baltimore. Tawes was high in 10 counties and one city district, and Baldwin led in four counties.

Lane's opponent in the general election, Mayor Theodore R. McKeldin, of Baltimore, scored a smashing victory over Herman L. Mills, the Hagerstown merchant who deplored extensive government regulation of business. Returns from 943 precincts showed a primary vote of 36,979 for McKeldin

O'Daniel Threatens Filibuster To Prevent Senate's Approval Of OPA Bill before Act Expires

QUESTIONED IN KIDNAP-SLAYING

Chicago Police To Quiz Suspect In Degnan Case

Discrepancies In Statement of Ex-Convict Are Reported

CHICAGO, June 26 (AP)—Investigators in two cities today reported discrepancies in the statement of Richard Russell Thomas, 42-year old ex-convict held at Phoenix, Ariz., that he was the kidnap-killer of six-year-old Suzanne Degnan.

Chief of Detectives Walter Storms, of Chicago, said he was skeptical of the man's story but State's Attorney William J. Tuohy said there was enough evidence in Phoenix to "justify sending a man there."

At Phoenix, Sheriff Ernest W. Roach said a preliminary analysis failed to show any similarity between Thomas's handwriting and that on a $20,000 ransom note left behind in the Degnan girl's bedroom when she was kidnaped from her bed January 7.

On closer study Roach said there was "some similarity" in certain letters between the note Thomas printed with his left hand and the original message. Roach said that Thomas, pressed for a statement, declared he had used his left hand to write the Degnan note while holding a pocket pencil flashlight in his right hand.

Thomas added, the sheriff declared, that he once broke his right arm and since that time had found difficulty writing with his right hand.

Earlier, Roach said Thomas also failed to misspell words as they appeared in newspaper clippings of the ransom note.

Assistant State's Attorney Edward Healy, Police Lt. John A. Olson and Detective Timothy Allman left Chicago for Phoenix by plane today to question Thomas.

Roach said that Thomas, who is in jail at Phoenix awaiting sentence on a sex charge, made a voluntary statement on the Degnan case but declined to sign it.

Roach said Thomas told him he kidnapped the girl in Chicago last January 7, placed a gunnysack over her head, apparently suffocating

Chicago's Mayor Acts On Reports Al Capone Still Bosses Gambling

CHICAGO, June 26 (AP) — Mayor Edward J. Kelly, acting on reports that Al Capone still bossed vice and gambling in Chicago, said today he would order the closing of all gambling places found in the city.

A Capone tieup to the city's underworld activities was reported by James M. Ragen, Sr., wealthy head of a nationwide racing news service who was seriously wounded Monday night in the second assassination attempt on him in less than two months.

Ragen, in a statement made after the first attempt on his life but just released by the state's attorney's office yesterday, said Al Capone and other members of his family still controlled remnants of the old Capone syndicate. He charged the Capones were attempting to muscle in on his racing news business and gain control of all handbooks in Chicago.

307,554 Soldiers Died during War, U.S. Army Reports

1,424 Are Listed as Missing for Fatality Rate of 2.98 Per Cent

WASHINGTON, June 27 (AP)—The first consolidated postwar casualty roll released today by the War department lists 308,978 dead and missing among more than 10,000,000 men and women mobilized into the United States Army for service in the Second World war — a fatality rate of 2.98 per cent.

The list was compiled in booklets, one for each state, one for the District of Columbia and one for the territories and possessions of the United States. The record dates from the presidential declaration of a national emergency on May 27, 1941, through January 31, 1946.

During that time a total of 307,554 were killed in action, died of other causes or were declared dead after having been missing a year. In addition, 1,424 persons were still carried as missing on January 31, 1946.

The War department is extremely reluctant to hold out hope to next of kin that any persons carried as "missing" at this late date will be found alive. Investigations to trace them still are going on, but it is expected that the cases will be closed with a finding of death in accord with congressional law.

Of the total, 176,432 or 57.1 per cent, were listed as killed in action. A total of 25,493 or 8.25 per cent died of wounds suffered in combat and 929 or 0.3 per cent died of injuries, such as a broken neck in a fall, during combat.

A total of 85,219 or 27.6 per cent died other than in battle. They were the victims of accidents or disease, for example. Then 19,481 or 6.3 per cent were administratively determined to have died. This included men lost at sea or who crashed in a burning plane. The figure, 1,424, still carried as missing, represents 0.45 per cent of the total.

The death rate in the various

Strategy Urged Upon President Would Be Balked

Labor Leaders Believe Veto Would Bring Emergency Measure

TEXAN HOPES TO GET HELP IF NECESSARY

Move by Sen. Wherry To Remove Controls on Meat Fizzles Out

WASHINGTON, June 26 (AP) — Sen. O'Daniel (D-Tex) threatened a filibuster today to prevent passage of the OPA extension bill before the present act dies Sunday midnight.

"I think it would be swell," he told a reporter, "if the American people could wake up Monday morning under the American form of government they've been out from under so long."

O'Daniel's desk was piled high with papers—apparently material for a long, long speech—and he said that "more will be arriving if it's needed. I hope to get help if it's necessary."

Failure to enact the OPA bill before the deadline would cause all price and rent controls to lapse. They could be reinstated again when the measure finally is passed.

Labor Leaders' Strategy

But O'Daniel's filibuster would thwart a strategy urged upon President Truman by labor leaders and others. His is to veto the OPA bill, with its limitations on the agency's powers, in the hope that Congress would then approve—before Sunday—an emergency measure continuing the OPA as is.

O'Daniel was delayed in gaining the floor by speeches of other senators, including a discussion of UNRRA by Sen. Bridges (R-NH).

The Senate then recessed, without a vote, until 11 a. m. tomorrow.

An earlier move by Sen. Wherry (R-Neb) to restore to the OPA bill the provision removing price controls on meat, poultry and dairy products fizzled out, at least for the present.

President Pro Tempore McKellar (D-Tenn) ruled that the move would be in order only if the Senate rejects the compromise bill which the House passed yesterday.

Barkley Recommends Bill

Democratic Leader Barkley (Ky) recommended the measure as "the best bill possible under the circumstances." It contains some provisions which Stabilization Director Chester Bowles called "booby traps" for price control. But it omits others which would have ended certain controls outright.

Bowles conferred with the president for half an hour during the afternoon but refused to say whether he had recommended a veto. Pressed for comment on the bill, he told reporters:

"My own feeling is what it has been. It would make things very difficult—they couldn't be harder."

Langer Wins GOP Senate Race in North Dakota

FARGO, N. D., June 26 (AP) — J. B. Bridston tonight conceded the North Dakota Republican senatorial nominatio nto United States Sen. William Langer as additional returns boosted Langer's lead over the Grand Forks insurance man.

Bridston said he had no additional statement to make at this time. Latest returns from 1,766 of 2,256 precincts in the primary election gave Langer 54,753 to 46,722 for Bridston.

Truman, by Signing His Name, Could Solve Many Matrimonial Problems

By VIRGINIA VAN DER VEER

WASHINGTON, June 26 (AP) — President Truman has his problems all right. Now it's foreign fiancees. (No, not finances).

On the presidential desk, just waiting for his "Harry S. Truman," is what Capitol Hill fondly calls its "sweetheart bill."

Passed by both House and Senate, it needs only the Truman pen. With one flourish, the president can solve more matrimonial problems than a dozen "advice to the lovelorn" editors.

This bill is for the girls they left behind them — overseas.

As things stand now, fiancees have no special privileges. They come over like plain, everyday aliens under the quota system.

But, pondered a sympathetic Congress, what to do about the fiancee whose country had a full quota and a waiting list? It might take years. Australia and New Zealand, for instance, have annual quotas of 100 each. Such a state of affairs was, Congress thought, unfair to wartime romance.

The "sweetheart bill" opens the doors to fiancees if:

(1) They have bona fide intentions of marriage.

(2) They set a date and stick to it.

The bill thinks of everything. If no marriage occurs, it says sternly, back goes the fiancee.

Asked for advice, the State department had only one suggestion. The bill, it pointed out, called for admission of "fiancees or fiances" of members of the armed forces.

Acting Secretary Dean Acheson wrote Congress — diplomatically — that maybe it had made a typographical error. Surely it meant to admit "fiancees and finances."

The difference? Congress says the first are engaged to GIs, the latter, to WACS.

NEW YORK, June 26. (AP)—Soviet Russia invoked the veto three times tonight during a stormy and confused session of the United Nations Security Council which ended in a complete deadlock on the future status of the Spanish question.

After almost six hours of the bitterest debate ever heard at the council table, the weary delegates gave up their efforts to find a formula defining the terms under which the case would be kept on the agenda.

Miller Gets Suspended Sentence in Slaying Of Fellow Officer

NEW YORK, June 26 (AP)—Army Capt. Archie Miller, 28, who pleaded guilty to manslaughter in the fatal shooting of his estranged wife's lover, a fellow officer, rather than have her testify, received a suspended sentence today in general sessions court.

"It is a sad day for a devoted husband with red blood in his veins not to do something about a situation like this when he comes home and finds his home violated," Judge John A. Mullen told the Bellevue, Tex., veteran of three years overseas service.

"I am going to give you a suspended sentence and place you on probation. I realize the provocation you had x x x"

Miller originally was indicted for murder after Capt. Eugene Dale, 27, survivor of the Bataan death march, was shot in the apartment of Miller's estranged wife, a former Powers model from Jonesboro, N. C., last December 28.

Severest Fresh Meat Shortage Of Modern Times Grows Worse

[By The Associated Press]

The severest fresh meat shortage of modern times grew worse yesterday (Wednesday).

It hit the legitimate butcher shops, black market and restaurants.

The thin run of livestock to market, already at a record low, dropped off still further as the Senate debated the fate of the OPA extension bill.

Receipts of hogs at 12 leading western markets totaled 19,300 today, compared with 26,452 a week ago and 46,842 a year ago. Total livestock receipts, which last week ran about 35 per cent below the preceding year, have fallen another 10 per cent this week.

A survey of the nation's cities brought from everywhere the same report: "Little or no fresh meat." In the cities, even cold cuts were hard to find in normal channels. Poultry and fish, however, were relatively plentiful.

The National Association of Retail Meat Dealers reported half the nation's butcher shops had closed their doors. Those operating in conjunction with groceries were open but had little or no meat, the association said:

The National Restaurant Association said "reports from all over the country" showed the fresh meat problem growing worse.

"The meat shortage has thrown a great additional burden on the restaurants, with persons dining out when they can't find meat in their butcher shops," an association spokesman said. "The restaurants are trying their best to offer something besides poultry, fish and eggs, but this is becoming increasingly more difficult."

Most industry spokesmen expected some improvement in the situation

Members of British Delegation Are Impressed by Russian Plan

PARIS, Thursday, June 27 (AP) — The foreign ministers conference has rejected a Russian proposal to place disputed Trieste either under dual sovereignty or under Yugoslav sovereignty as an autonomous district, authoritative circles said today.

The proposal was advanced by Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov at a special night meeting of the four-power conference called in an attempt to find a solution to the key question of the disposition of Trieste—the Adriatic city claimed by both Italy and Yugoslavia.

Before the three-hour meeting broke up shortly after midnight United States Secretary of State James F. Byrnes said that if the foreign ministers could not settle the Trieste issue it should be referred to the 21-nation peace conference. Molotov answered it would be a mistake to disrupt the peace conference with this question.

In submitting his proposal, Molotov said Russia opposed internationalization of Trieste as proposed by Georges Bidault, French president and foreign minister.

Molotov Is Disappointed

The night meeting, the first since the ministers' first sessions last April, was summoned by Molotov and held in Byrnes's office at Luxembourg palace.

Molotov obviously was disappointed at the reception his proposals received. He presented them, both British and American sources said, as great concessions which he hoped would be given ready assent.

Members of the British delegation were visibly impressed by Molotov's proposals, and some said they saw in it a path to an agreement after another two or three days of private conversations.

The proposal showed, the Britons said, Molotov's apparent desire to reach some sort of a compromise on this issue—the major question blocking agreement on the Italian peace treaty.

Earlier, vigorous American opposition balked an attempt by Molotov to write a special commericial status for Russia into the peace treaties for the Balkan nations.

American sources said Molotov had sought unsuccessfully to include in the Romanian treaty a provision which would have exempted neighboring states, including Russia, from clauses requiring Romania to give all the Allies equal commercial status.

Agreement Is Reached

Agreement was reached by the conference on provisions requiring Romania to make restitution of looted Allied property but permitting her to negotiate directly and individually with interested nations. Informants said this clause was sent to the deputy ministers for redrafting.

The question of restoring industrial patents, literary and other rights in connection with the Romanian treaty was shelved to permit

Boos Greet Browder On His Return to U. S.

NEW YORK, June 26 (AP) —Earl Browder, former head of the Communist party in the United States, arrived here by airplane today from Russia where he was entertained by Soviet officials, and was booed by a crowd which gathered around him.

Pushing his way through the shouting people after his baggage had passed a customs inspection, Browder told newspapermen attempting to interview him:

"I am happy to see you boys again. There is no place like New York, and only New York could put on such a show as this."

Browder posed for photographers and newsreel cameramen, but refused to comment on the reception given him in Russia by Soviet leaders, including Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov.

While the crowd jostled around him and one man shouted, "Why didn't you stay in Moscow. We don't want you here," Browder declared that he had no message for American Communists. He added that he had made all his remarks to American correspondents in Moscow.

Congress Is Requested To Clear Way for Vast Super-highway Project

WASHINGTON, June 26. (AP)—Congress was asked today to clear the way for a $12,000,000,000 coast-to-coast and border-to-border network of toll super-highways.

Before the House Roads committee to press the proposal was T. E. Steiner, Wooster, Ohio, who has been sponsoring the plan since he first proposed it in 1936. The committee took no action.

The super-highways would be similar in conception to the Pennsylvania turnpike, but much more elaborate.

Under a bill by Rep. Randolph (D-WVA) to carry out Steiner's plan, the roads would be built with private capital, with the government guaranteeing investors a 2½ per cent annual return and no losses.

Tobey Hits Back At Truman; Says Remarks Unfair

By EDWIN B. HAAKINSON

WASHINGTON, June 26 (AP)—Sen. Tobey, of New Hampshire, accused by President Truman of discouraging "good men" from entering government by emitting "yells," hit back today with a suggestion that it is the president, not he, who needs a "cooling-off period."

The New Hampshire Republican, in a speech on the Senate floor, branded unfair statements made in a barbed letter in which Mr. Truman pictured Tobey as a chronic complainer who made "unwarranted attacks" on Edwin W. Pauley, nominee for undersecretary of the navy.

Pauley's nomination was withdrawn after a fight led by Tobey. Harold L. Ickes, then secretary of the interior, testified that Pauley had suggested campaign funds could be obtained from oil men if the government would not push its claim to tidelands oil producing areas. Pauley denied the charge.

Mr. Truman's letter was written May 29 in response to a communication in which Tobey made what he called a "Macedonian cry" or appeal for help from the president in getting more grain for poultry raisers in New England.

Tobey Reads Letter

After word of the letter had been given to newsmen by Tobey's colleagues, Tobey took the floor today to read the full text to the Senate. It follows:

"Dear Senator Tobey:

"Replying to your telegram of May twenty-third, in which you say you are making a 'Macedonian cry,' it seems to me that you have been making Macedonian cries or yells ever since I have been in the White House. For what reason I never could understand.

"Your unwarranted attacks on Mr. Pauley almost ruined a good public servant. Between you and Mr. Ickes you have made it exceedingly difficult for me to get good men to fill the necessary places in the government. You are still continuing your Macedonian cries and I hope you will get a lot of pleasure out of them.

"As far as your food situation is concerned, the secretary of agriculture has been instructed to meet the situation as well as he possibly can both in New England and the Far Northwest, where the situation is exactly the same. It is a matter of chickens or people and, if it comes to a decision as to which should be kept from starving, naturally, if I make the decision, it will be the people. I don't know whether that will please you or not, but I hope it will.

"Sometime when you have reached a cooling-off period, I'd be glad to talk with you about the whole situation.

"Sincerely yours,

"[s] Harry

"Come and see me." (Handwritten)

Gallery Visitors Chuckle

As Tobey read the "come and see me" postscript, gallery visitors chuckled. Whereupon Tobey said "that was not a Mae West invitation."

He declared he was "amazed" at the letter; that it was "not the type of letter a senator would expect to receive" after he had appealed to the president.

The portion about feeding people or chickens was "not a fair remark," he said, and as for the Pauley case, Senate confirmation of presidential appointments was not a "rubber stamp" operation.

There "never was a time," he said, when confirmation of Pauley could be expected. Presidential appointments, he declared should be on such a high plane that confirmation could be anticipated.

Senate Passes Mental Health Institute Bill

WASHINGTON, June 26 (AP) — Without debate, the Senate accepted today a compromise bill setting up a national mental health institute. The compromise boosted the cost of erecting the institute at Bethesda, Md., from $4,000,000 to $6,000,000.

The bill goes now to the House for action.

By JOHN V. HORNER

BALTIMORE, June 26—(AP)—Gov. Herbert R. O'Conor, who was nominated in the Maryland primary election Monday as the Democratic candidate for United States Senat, appeared today to have achieved one of the most spectacular successes of his quarter-century in political life.

But 68-year-old Sen. George L. Radcliffe, whom he defeated, declined to concede the nomination.

Unofficial and incomplete returns, Radcliffe contended, cast doubt on the outcome in various counties. Furthermore, he said, he had received several reports of "irregularities" and he wanted to study the situation further before making a statement on the results.

The senator declined to specify the origin or nature of the irregularities.

Belated returns indicated that the 49-year-old governor captured 102 of the 152 votes by which a party convention will make formal nomination. He appeared to be the winner by a convention majority of better than 2 to 1.

With only 19 of the state's 1,331 precincts unreported, O'Conor polled 116,339 votes to Radcliffe's 93,670. The governor carried 12 of the 23 counties, with convention votes to taling 67, and five of Baltimore city's six legislative districts, with 35 convention votes.

Meanwhile, the late returns showed that William Preston Lane, Jr., national committeman and Hagerstown publisher, banker and lawyer, was increasing the margin by which he won the Democratic nomination for governor.

Figures for 1,299 precincts gave Lane 103,227 votes, while State Comptroller J. Millard Tawes had 84,347, and Rep. H. Streett Baldwin 48,254. The convention wote was: Lane, 85; Tawes 49; Baldwin 18.

The Hagerstownian won nine counties and five legislative districts in Baltimore. Tawes was high in 10 counties and one city district, and Baldwin led in four counties.

Lane's opponent in the general election, Mayor Theodore R. McKeldin, of Baltimore, scored a smashing victory over Herman L. Mills, the Hagerstown merchant who deplored extensive government regulation of business. Returns from 943 precincts showed a primary vote of 36,979 for McKeldin

QUESTIONED IN KIDNAP-SLAYING

Chicago Police To Quiz Suspect In Degnan Case

Discrepancies In Statement of Ex-Convict Are Reported

CHICAGO, June 26 (AP)—Investigators in two cities today reported discrepancies in the statement of Richard Russell Thomas, 42-year old ex-convict held at Phoenix, Ariz., that he was the kidnap-killer of six-year-old Suzanne Degnan.

Chief of Detectives Walter Storms, of Chicago, said he was skeptical of the man's story but State's Attorney William J. Tuohy said there was enough evidence in Phoenix to "justify sending a man there."

At Phoenix, Sheriff Ernest W. Roach said a preliminary analysis failed to show any similarity between Thomas's handwriting and that on a $20,000 ransom note left behind in the Degnan girl's bedroom when she was kidnaped from her bed January 7.

On closer study Roach said there was "some similarity" in certain letters between the note Thomas printed with his left hand and the original message. Roach said that Thomas, pressed for a statement, declared he had used his left hand to write the Degnan note while holding a pocket pencil flashlight in his right hand.

Thomas added, the sheriff declared, that he once broke his right arm and since that time had found difficulty writing with his right hand.

Earlier, Roach said Thomas also failed to misspell words as they appeared in newspaper clippings of the ransom note.

Assistant State's Attorney Edward Healy, Police Lt. John A. Olson and Detective Timothy Allman left Chicago for Phoenix by plane today to question Thomas.

Roach said that Thomas, who is in jail at Phoenix awaiting sentence on a sex charge, made a voluntary statement on the Degnan case but declined to sign it.

Roach said Thomas told him he kidnapped the girl in Chicago last January 7, placed a gunnysack over her head, apparently suffocating

Chicago's Mayor Acts On Reports Al Capone Still Bosses Gambling

CHICAGO, June 26 (AP) — Mayor Edward J. Kelly, acting on reports that Al Capone still bossed vice and gambling in Chicago, said today he would order the closing of all gambling places found in the city.

A Capone tieup to the city's underworld activities was reported by James M. Ragen, Sr., wealthy head of a nationwide racing news service who was seriously wounded Monday night in the second assassination attempt on him in less than two months.

Ragen, in a statement made after the first attempt on his life but just released by the state's attorney's office yesterday, said Al Capone and other members of his family still controlled remnants of the old Capone syndicate. He charged the Capones were attempting to muscle in on his racing news business and gain control of all handbooks in Chicago.

307,554 Soldiers Died during War, U.S. Army Reports

1,424 Are Listed as Missing for Fatality Rate of 2.98 Per Cent

WASHINGTON, June 27 (AP)—The first consolidated postwar casualty roll released today by the War department lists 308,978 dead and missing among more than 10,000,000 men and women mobilized into the United States Army for service in the Second World war — a fatality rate of 2.98 per cent.

The list was compiled in booklets, one for each state, one for the District of Columbia and one for the territories and possessions of the United States. The record dates from the presidential declaration of a national emergency on May 27, 1941, through January 31, 1946.

During that time a total of 307,554 were killed in action, died of other causes or were declared dead after having been missing a year. In addition, 1,424 persons were still carried as missing on January 31, 1946.

The War department is extremely reluctant to hold out hope to next of kin that any persons carried as "missing" at this late date will be found alive. Investigations to trace them still are going on, but it is expected that the cases will be closed with a finding of death in accord with congressional law.

Of the total, 176,432 or 57.1 per cent, were listed as killed in action. A total of 25,493 or 8.25 per cent died of wounds suffered in combat and 929 or 0.3 per cent died of injuries, such as a broken neck in a fall, during combat.

A total of 85,219 or 27.6 per cent died other than in battle. They were the victims of accidents or disease, for example. Then 19,481 or 6.3 per cent were administratively determined to have died. This included men lost at sea or who crashed in a burning plane. The figure, 1,424, still carried as missing, represents 0.45 per cent of the total.

The death rate in the various

Strategy Urged Upon President Would Be Balked

Labor Leaders Believe Veto Would Bring Emergency Measure

TEXAN HOPES TO GET HELP IF NECESSARY

Move by Sen. Wherry To Remove Controls on Meat Fizzles Out

WASHINGTON, June 26 (AP) — Sen. O'Daniel (D-Tex) threatened a filibuster today to prevent passage of the OPA extension bill before the present act dies Sunday midnight.

"I think it would be swell," he told a reporter, "if the American people could wake up Monday morning under the American form of government they've been out from under so long."

O'Daniel's desk was piled high with papers—apparently material for a long, long speech—and he said that "more will be arriving if it's needed. I hope to get help if it's necessary."

Failure to enact the OPA bill before the deadline would cause all price and rent controls to lapse. They could be reinstated again when the measure finally is passed.

Labor Leaders' Strategy

But O'Daniel's filibuster would thwart a strategy urged upon President Truman by labor leaders and others. His is to veto the OPA bill, with its limitations on the agency's powers, in the hope that Congress would then approve—before Sunday—an emergency measure continuing the OPA as is.

O'Daniel was delayed in gaining the floor by speeches of other senators, including a discussion of UNRRA by Sen. Bridges (R-NH).

The Senate then recessed, without a vote, until 11 a. m. tomorrow.

An earlier move by Sen. Wherry (R-Neb) to restore to the OPA bill the provision removing price controls on meat, poultry and dairy products fizzled out, at least for the present.

President Pro Tempore McKellar (D-Tenn) ruled that the move would be in order only if the Senate rejects the compromise bill which the House passed yesterday.

Barkley Recommends Bill

Democratic Leader Barkley (Ky) recommended the measure as "the best bill possible under the circumstances." It contains some provisions which Stabilization Director Chester Bowles called "booby traps" for price control. But it omits others which would have ended certain controls outright.

Bowles conferred with the president for half an hour during the afternoon but refused to say whether he had recommended a veto. Pressed for comment on the bill, he told reporters:

"My own feeling is what it has been. It would make things very difficult—they couldn't be harder."

Langer Wins GOP Senate Race in North Dakota

FARGO, N. D., June 26 (AP) — J. B. Bridston tonight conceded the North Dakota Republican senatorial nominatio nto United States Sen. William Langer as additional returns boosted Langer's lead over the Grand Forks insurance man.

Bridston said he had no additional statement to make at this time. Latest returns from 1,766 of 2,256 precincts in the primary election gave Langer 84,753 to 46,722 for Bridston.

Truman, by Signing His Name, Could Solve Many Matrimonial Problems

By VIRGINIA VAN DER VEER

WASHINGTON, June 26 (AP) — President Truman has his problems all right. Now it's foreign fiancees. (No, not finances).

On the presidential desk, just waiting for his "Harry S. Truman," is what Capitol Hill fondly calls its "sweetheart bill."

Passed by both House and Senate, it needs only the Truman pen. With one flourish, the president can solve more matrimonial problems than a dozen "advice to the lovelorn" editors.

This bill is for the girls they left behind them — overseas.

As things stand now, fiancees have no special privileges. They come over like plain, everyday aliens under the quota system.

But, pondered a sympathetic Congress, what to do about the fiancee whose country had a full quota and a waiting list? It might take years. Australia and New Zealand, for instance, have annual quotas of 100 each. Such a state of affairs was, Congress thought, unfair to wartime romance.

The "sweetheart bill" opens the doors to fiancees if:

(1) They have bona fide intentions of marriage.

(2) They set a date and stick to it.

The bill thinks of everything. If no marriage occurs, it says sternly, back goes the fiancee.

Asked for advice, the State department had only one suggestion. The bill, it pointed out, called for admission of "fiancees or fiances" of members of the armed forces.

Acting Secretary Dean Acheson wrote Congress — diplomatically — that maybe it had made a typographical error. Surely it meant to admit "fiancees and finances."

The difference? Congress says the first are engaged to GIs, the latter, to WACS.

Forrestal Will Help To Attain Army-Navy Unity

Navy Secretary Pledges Co-operation To Reach "Objectives"

WASHINGTON, June 26 (AP) — Secretary of the Navy Forrestal, in a cagily-worded letter, said today he would help attain the "objectives" of President Truman's army-navy merger plan but Capitol Hill looked for plenty of controversy about the specific details.

Forrestal's letter to the president, dated Monday and released by the White House today, was not nearly so unreserved as Secretary of War Patterson's June 18 letter pledging "whole-hearted support."

The Forrestal communication revealed that the navy secretary had conferred further with Mr. Truman on the merger plan June 19—one day after Patterson's letter was made public and four days after the president had sent to Congress his final recommendations on the subject.

Many Sought Notification

Forrestal's letter merely referred the president to that conversation without disclosing publicly what was said. Senators reported, however, that the navy had appealed to the chief executive for modification of his proposal turning over virtually all of its land-based aviation to a separate air forces.

Forrestal gave this matter special treatment in his letter.

First he outlined his "understanding" that the president has two "principal objectives:"

1. Creation of a single defense department "under a civilian head, with broad powers of overall supervision and control while leaving full administration of their respective services to the secretaries for war, navy and air."

2. Preservation of the navy's "integrity and autonomy."

"I consider the foregoing objectives attainable," the letter continued, "and the recognized difficulties in drafting legislation which will insure their success surmountable."

Land-Based Aviation

Then Forrestal turned to the question of land-based aviation.

The president had proposed to Congress:

"Land-based planes for naval reconnaissance, anti-submarine warfare and protection of shipping can and should be manned by air force personnel. If the three services are to work as a team there must be close co-operation, with interchange of personnel and special training for specific duties.

Forrestal's comment on this were merely:

"I am glad to note that the navy is to have a continuing part of the future development of these operations, so the full advantage may be taken of its experience in this field and of the lessons learned in the late war. Adm. (Chester W.) Nimitz joins me in this expression."

Showers Break Two-day Heat Wave; Reading Of 101 Noted Tuesday

Showers late yesterday afternoon broke a two-day heat wave here after the mercury hit the high point of the year, 101 degrees, Tuesday and a maximum of 95 early yesterday afternoon. By 4 p. m. yesterday, shortly before a brief thunder storm, the temperature stood at 86 degrees.

The high reading of 101 degrees Tuesday came only six days after the city experienced its lowest maximum temperature of the month, with 60 degrees on June 19. Tuesday was the second day of the month with a three-figure recording, as 100 was the temperature of June 17. The 101 readin was the highest since the mercury climbed to 102 on June 30 last year.

In contrast to the two peak days, June has had five days with temperatures of 47 or less, and during a cool spell early in the month many Cumberlanders rebuilt fires in furnaces following a mild Memorial day period.

The forecast for today is partly cloudy and continued warm, with "some chance" of widely scattered showers.

Elected to the six-man board of control were Daniel Brown, Blair Welch and Edward Wolfe.

The newly elected officers will be installed by Jerome G. Daniker, Baltimore, district governor, Tuesday, July 9, at 6:30 p. m. at the Ali Ghan Shrine Country club.

British Insecticide Kills Cotton Pests

NEW YORK—(AP)—The new British insecticide, 666, kills boll weevils, cotton aphids and cotton flea hoppers, according to an announcement by the Pennsylvania Salt Manufacturing Company, where experimental quantities are being produced.

D.D.T. failed to kill boll weevils. The announcement declares that 666 has ten times more killing power than concentrated D.D.T., but does not last as long after being applied. It remains active for two or three days.

The British insecticide is said to kill a large group of insects. Its name comes from the fact that it contains six atoms of carbon, six of hydrogen and six of chlorine.

Waiting is tough on us, too

For months we've been hoping to present each and every one of you with the new Packards you've ordered, and have been waiting for so patiently.

Last fall, the outlook was good. Packard was confident it would double its pre-war output in 1946. (The factory is equipped to turn out far more than that.)

Look what has happened!

Then came material shortages. Parts shortages. For reasons completely beyond its own control, Packard was able to keep its assembly line moving only nine days in the first quarter of this year.

In the meantime . . .

Our friends have kept calling us up and asking, "Hey! Where's that new Packard I ordered weeks ago?" Many of these are old friends—Packard owners since 'way back.

But to make life more complicated, everybody seems to want one of these grand new Packards. Over 65% of the people out to buy new Packards are now driving some other make.

Honest, it's gotten so we hate to answer the telephone or look our friends in the face. But . . .

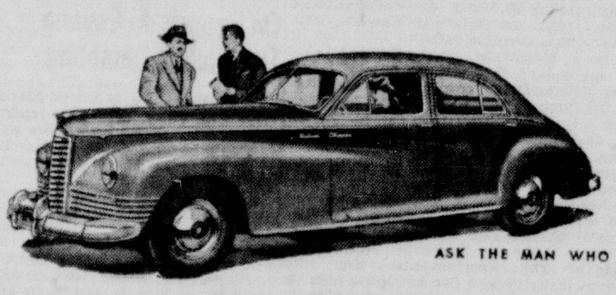

Your patience will pay off!

One of these days, the shortage of parts and materials is bound to ease up. And when it does, those twin-assembly lines at Packard will really roll.

Anyway, you can depend on this:

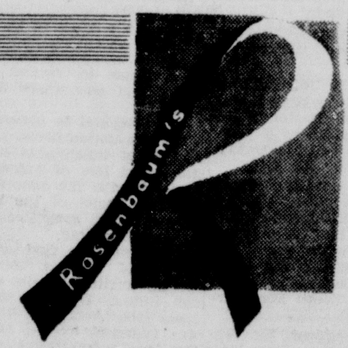

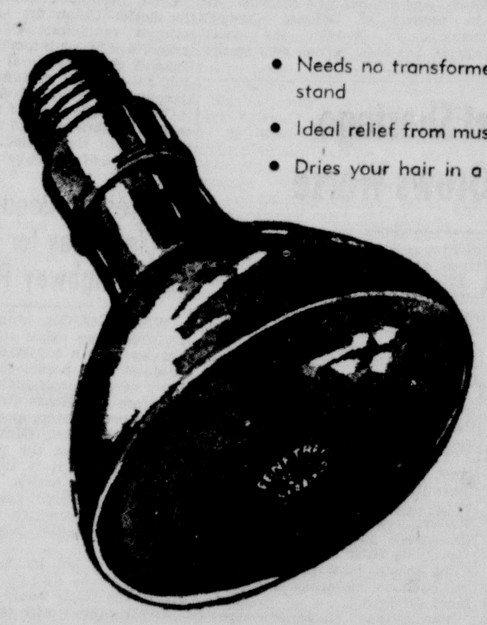

As fast as the factory ships cars to us, we'll do everything we can to deliver yours at the earliest possible moment.

So, we hope you'll be patient a little longer. We're doing the best we can, and so are the folks at the factory!

Forrestal Will Help To Attain Army-Navy Unity

Navy Secretary Pledges Co-operation To Reach "Objectives"

WASHINGTON, June 26 (AP) — Secretary of the Navy Forrestal, in a cagily-worded letter, said today he would help attain the "objectives" of President Truman's army-navy merger plan but Capitol Hill looked for plenty of controversy about the specific details.

Forrestal's letter to the president, dated Monday and released by the White House today, was not nearly so unreserved as Secretary of War Patterson's June 18 letter pledging "whole-hearted support."

The Forrestal communication revealed that the navy secretary had conferred further with Mr. Truman on the merger plan June 19—one day after Patterson's letter was made public and four days after the president had sent to Congress his final recommendations on the subject.

Many Sought Notification

Forrestal's letter merely referred the president to that conversation without disclosing publicly what was said. Senators reported, however, that the navy had appealed to the chief executive for modification of his proposal turning over virtually all of its land-based aviation to a separate air forces.

Forrestal gave this matter special treatment in his letter.

First he outlined his "understanding" that the president has two "principal objectives:"

1. Creation of a single defense department "under a civilian head, with broad powers of overall supervision and control while leaving full administration of their respective services to the secretaries for war, navy and air."

2. Preservation of the navy's "integrity and autonomy."

"I consider the foregoing objectives attainable," the letter continued, "and the recognized difficulties in drafting legislation which will insure their success surmountable."

Land-Based Aviation

Then Forrestal turned to the question of land-based aviation.

The president had proposed to Congress:

"Land-based planes for naval reconnaissance, anti-submarine warfare and protection of shipping can and should be manned by air force personnel. If the three services are to work as a team there must be close co-operation, with interchange of personnel and special training for specific duties.

Forrestal's comment on this were merely:

"I am glad to note that the navy is to have a continuing part of the future development of these operations, so the full advantage may be taken of its experience in this field and of the lessons learned in the late war. Adm. (Chester W.) Nimitz joins me in this expression."

Showers Break Two-day Heat Wave; Reading Of 101 Noted Tuesday

Showers late yesterday afternoon broke a two-day heat wave here after the mercury hit the high point of the year, 101 degrees, Tuesday and a maximum of 95 early yesterday afternoon. By 4 p. m. yesterday, shortly before a brief thunder storm, the temperature stood at 86 degrees.

The high reading of 101 degrees Tuesday came only six days after the city experienced its lowest maximum temperature of the month, with 60 degrees on June 19. Tuesday was the second day of the month with a three-figure recording, as 100 was the temperature of June 17. The 101 readin was the highest since the mercury climbed to 102 on June 30 last year.

In contrast to the two peak days, June has had five days with temperatures of 47 or less, and during a cool spell early in the month many Cumberlanders rebuilt fires in furnaces following a mild Memorial day period.

The forecast for today is partly cloudy and continued warm, with "some chance" of widely scattered showers.

Elected to the six-man board of control were Daniel Brown, Blair Welch and Edward Wolfe.

The newly elected officers will be installed by Jerome G. Daniker, Baltimore, district governor, Tuesday, July 9, at 6:30 p. m. at the Ali Ghan Shrine Country club.

At present there are about 33 members of the club organized here in 1939.

British Insecticide Kills Cotton Pests

NEW YORK—(AP)—The new British insecticide, 666, kills boll weevils, cotton aphids and cotton flea hoppers, according to an announcement by the Pennsylvania Salt Manufacturing Company, where experimental quantities are being produced.

D.D.T. failed to kill boll weevils.

The announcement declares that 666 has ten times more killing power than concentrated D.D.T., but does not last as long after being applied. It remains active for two or three days.

The British insecticide is said to kill a large group of insects. Its name comes from the fact that it contains six atoms of carbon, six of hydrogen and six of chlorine.

Waiting is tough on us, too

For months we've been hoping to present each and every one of you with the new Packards you've ordered, and have been waiting for so patiently.

Last fall, the outlook was good. Packard was confident it would double its pre-war output in 1946. (The factory is equipped to turn out far more than that.)

Look what has happened!

Then came material shortages. Parts shortages. For reasons completely beyond its own control, Packard was able to keep its assembly line moving only nine days in the first quarter of this year.

In the meantime . . .

Our friends have kept calling us up and asking, "Hey! Where's that new Packard I ordered weeks ago?" Many of these are old friends—Packard owners since 'way back.

But to make life more complicated, everybody seems to want one of these grand new Packards. Over 65% of the people out to buy new Packards are now driving some other make.

Honest, it's gotten so we hate to answer the telephone or look our friends in the face. But . . .

Your patience will pay off!

One of these days, the shortage of parts and materials is bound to ease up. And when it does, those twin-assembly lines at Packard will really roll.

Anyway, you can depend on this:

As fast as the factory ships cars to us, we'll do everything we can to deliver yours at the earliest possible moment.

So, we hope you'll be patient a little longer. We're doing the best we can, and so are the folks at the factory!

Movies Owe a Lot To William S. Hart

OUT IN HOLLYWOOD they said that William S. Hart "succumbed to old age" when he went to join the last roundup, as they say out West. To those of us who have enough years on our shoulders to remember Bill in the old silent days of the movies, that is hard to believe. In those days Bill seemed eternally young, indestructible, so to speak—as he had to be to survive all those hails of hot lead poured at him in one hoss opry after another from 1914 to 1926.

It seemed that nothing could kill him off. He was a two-gun hombre of the first water; he could shoot from the hip and never miss and he bore a charmed life, and believe it or not, all this without the aid of a guitar and a voice mooing 'Back in the Saddle Again".

Interesting to note is that fact that never once did the watch and warders, censors and like critters raise a peep about Bill and his movies, in which virtue always rode high, wide and handsome.

When Bill mounted his horse to engage in a screen epic of the West, he wore two full-sized six-guns, flannel shirt and his pants in his boots. His facial reactions could only be described as poker. What Bill thought of the new crop of guitar-strumming, silk-shirted screen heroes of the West who wear their pants outside their boots has not been recorded. But it is a big jump from the hearty screen fare produced by Bill to the lily-pond gambolings of the current crop of cinema cowboys. Hart, whose income jumped in a few years from $75 a week to $8,400 as his popularity grew—big money in those days of comparatively low income taxes—retired from the screen 21 years ago.

Bill Hart, of course was the first of the movie cowboys, and he blazed the trail for Tom Mix and all the others. And the movie industry really got its start and its sustenance from the so-called hoss oprys. Pardner they are still making money on 'em.

It would be fitting for all the fancy folks out Hollywood way to pause and say a grateful prayer for old Bill Hart. It is true that Edison invented the movie—but it took fellows like Bill Hart to start it on its way.

Surely This Is Not Too Much To Ask

THE NEWS is convinced that the time has come for Congress to establish a national labor policy designed to deal with basic causes of industrial strife—a policy based on equality and responsibility in the public interest—one which will make collective bargaining work.

True collective bargaining is impossible if the bargaining parties do not come to the table on equal terms, and bear corresponding responsibility for their actions.

Today, the restrictions, the laws, and the penalties for breaking the laws, apply only to management.

An EMPLOYER IS COMPELLED by law to bargain collectively; unions have no legal responsibility to bargain at all.

An employer is forbidden to engage in unfair labor practices, and is charged with intimidation or discrimination on the slightest pretext. Labor leaders are not restrained by law from similar practices. An employer's right to free speech is so severely curtailed that he can hardly say "Good morning, Joe", to an employe without risking a charge of breaking the law. On the other hand, unions are perfectly free to make any kind of irresponsible statement about the company, without regard to facts.

It seems to this paper that EQUALITY UNDER THE LAW is the first principle necessary to a sound national labor policy.

Let's Clean House And Do It Soon

THERE ARE THOSE TODAY who say that we can always continue to borrow on the future as long as we keep "a lid on prices". If we do, we only defer the day of reckoning, and make it immensely more difficulty ultimately to clean house.

Our first and major problem is therefore our "money". While it is no doubt true that there are millions of persons who have "cash" burning in their pockets or in banks to be drawn out to buy goods and services, the problem of our money is how we shall get it in the future, and what it will be worth in buying power.

Since the federal budget was last balanced in 1930, we have borrowed unprecedented millions of dollars against our future production. This we shall have to pay for by work.

It is of little consequence whether "we owe it to ourselves" or "owe it to others". It has to be paid.

The interest alone on this debt is now around five billion dollars a year, or more than our entire federal expenditures in such prosperous times of peace as, for instance, the 1920's.

There is also the problem of paying back by production the principal of the loan.

We should find ourselves thinking twice before increasing our federal debt, because every increase means both a greater debt and a greater interest charge.

Social Security Costs Are Bound to Increase

THE HOUSE WAYS AND MEANS COMMITTEE, apparently succumbing to the propoganda of the payrollers in the social security setup in Washington, is reported to be preparing a measure "broadening" the social security program and increasing the "contributions" of employers and employes. In the whole history of the nation, there has never been a campaign comparable to that which these birds in fat jobs with social security have engaged in from its inception to "broaden" its scope and increase its taxes.

Veterans of World War II and families are to get the benefits of the program for three years. Maritime workers are to be brought within its provisions. Altmeyer, head of social security, wants to bring in 20 million other persons not now covered by old age and other insurance features. After January 1, under the scheme, contributions will be advanced from one per cent to two and one-half per cent for both employer and employe.

This proposed increase anticipates the probability that, as it is "liberalized," the social security fund will run into money trouble later on. During these flush money times there is an excess of income over outgo and the reserve fund totals nearly seven billion dollars. Officials estimate that disbursements will catch up with receipts about 1955, at the present rate of contribution—and expenditures—and in 20 years all reserves will be dissipated unless more money comes in.

In March, 1,300,000 persons were receiving age pensions and survivors' benefit payments out of the fund. By the end of this year the number will increase to two million. Altmeyer says that eventually there will be so many recipients that the cost will necessitate, not a one per cent or two per cent payroll tax, but a seven per cent tax. Were he to give his enthusiasm full rein, there is little doubt that he would be able to envision a tax rate much higher than that.

Loch Lomond is soon to have an amusement park on its shores. It's hard to visualize a merry-go-round spinning to the tune of the old song.

In Kansas a movement is afoot to attract tourists with the slogan, "Come and see our prohibition."

Labor Problems Beset Farmers In Haying Season

By MARK SULLIVAN

AVONDALE, CHESTER COUNTY, Pa.—To the farmers hereabout came the labor problem. It was not a matter of farm labor, of employed workers there are few. On the family-sized farms that mainly compose this community, most of the work is done by the farmers and members of their families. Such employed workers as there are have had long-continued and happy relations. It was the national labor problem that descended upon the community. It came at the height of the haying season.

Hay is cut, left long enough to dry in the sun, then baled in the field and taken to the barn. Baling in the field has become increasingly the practice. The ancient custom of taking a hay wagon to the field, pitching the loose hay upon it, going to the barn, then pitching the hay from wagon to mow, has for several years been passing away. Persons who have old photographs of loaded hay wagons, especially one drawn by horses, should preserve them, for they are becoming a record of the past almost as remote from modern farm life as Currier and Ives prints of men mowing hay by hand, with scythes.

Neighbors Co-Operate

Almost equally obsolete are pictures of farmers pitching hay with a fork. Long ago the labor of getting loose hay from field to mow was shortened, at the barn, by a cumbersome mechanical device which could lift the hay in big bunches from the wagon and carry it to the mow by a kind of cumbersome trolley. Lately that too has become obsolete. To avoid handling hay loose, has become a necessity enforced by cost. Baling the hay in the field and handling it in this compact form consumes perhaps less than a third of the labor entailed by the old way.

Hay balers are heavy machines. During the war they, like other farm machinery, became difficult to get, because of the diversion of factories to war work. This scarcity the farmers endured as an incident of war. There arose a neighborhood co-operation. A farmer who had a usable machine would use it to do his neighbors' work. This took careful timing and pre-arrangement, and long and concentrated hours, for the seasons of farm work are short. It was not unusual to hear the hum of balers or other machines coming across the moon-lit fields as late as 10 o'clock at night.

But a year ago, when the war ended, farmers looked forward to replenishing their worn machinery. Probably most farmers, during the summer of 1945, as they got along with worn machinery, or in some cases without machines at all, hopefully anticipated that by the harvest of 1946 they could get new machines and with them some amelioration of work and anxiety. But as the present haying season approached, farmers were told that new balers were scarce or not to be had. The reasons they were told included prolonged strikes in factories making farm machinery.

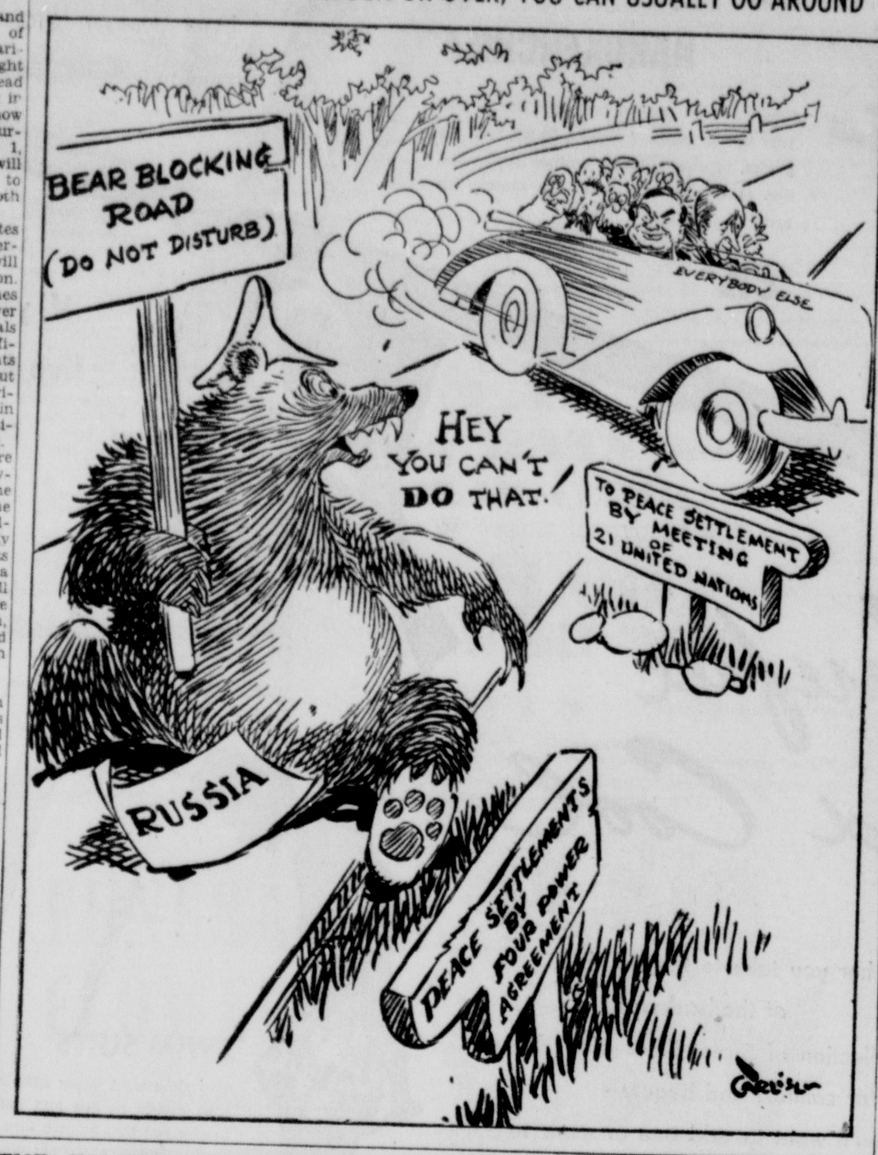

Much Hay Is Ruined

To this detriment was added, during June, untimely rains. A farmer mowed his hay, and had the day or two of sunshine necessary to dry it. At that point if he had a baler of his own, he could have got his hay to the barn. But while waiting for neighborhood balers, generously willing but hard-pressed, rain fell for two to three days. That meant waiting for more sunshine to dry out the hay. Even so, much of the food value of the hay was lost by the wetting and second drying. In some cases, after the second drying, came yet more rain. This practically destroyed the food value of the hay, it was not worth salvaging.

What this will mean in the form of less milk for city consumers next winter or higher cost of milk due to buying hay that is scarce and likely to be high priced, every farmer knows—to calculate accurately the transmuting of hay and other form of stock feed into milk is part of a modern farmer's education. He knows too, the practical grass-roots phase of the national economic problems arising out of the labor situation, and out of prices and the Office of Price Administration.

So far as the farmer sees labor difficulties as a cause of food scarcity, he is likely to be unsympathetic. Reading in the papers or hearing by radio disputes about an eight-hour day and a five-day week, the farmer reflects upon the length of his own work-day which, in seasons of reaping and planting, begins at milking time, half past five or so in the morning, and continues into moonlight hours in the field.

WHAT YOU CAN'T GO THROUGH OR OVER, YOU CAN USUALLY GO AROUND

THE WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Drew Pearson Says CPA Administrator Is on Spot regarding Housing for Vets

By DREW PEARSON

Washington, June 26. — Civilian Production Administrator Jack Small, worried over race-track construction while veterans are denied homes, has now sent out orders to his branch offices to spur veterans' housing.

Some of these problems were discussed with Small at a recent closed-door meeting with representatives of the major veterans' groups, when Wesley Pearce, of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, broached the subject of the new race track in Monmouth county, N. J., which is being built with CPA okay.

"Now, wait a minute," interrupted Small. "That particular race track was started before we had established effective building controls.

"You can't blame me," he insisted. "I admit that it was a mistake. But it was started last November, before we instituted these stop-orders on non-essential construction. The materials were already on the ground. The contractors couldn't get by with anything like that now."

Addition to Hotel

Small did not, however, explain why the race track hadn't been stopped by the CPA.

Just before the meeting broke up, VFW's Jim Gillan asked Small about the 250-room addition to Washington's Shoreham hotel which was okayed by the CPA on the shallow grounds that the added 250 rooms were needed to promote "foreign relations."

Gillan pointed out that it might have been smarter for CPA to divert bathtubs, bricks, and other building essentials into building homes for veterans, inasmuch as visiting diplomats already enjoy a high priority on Washington hotel accommodations.

"We have plenty of bathtubs," replied Small, "and a new type of non-essential flooring material for the Shoreham which won't interfere with construction shortages."

Before veterans' spokesmen could pin him down on the number of essential housing items going into the Shoreham annex, including bricks, the CPA boss announced that he had an appointment with the secretary of war and ended the conference.

Getting the OPA

OPA Administrator Paul Porter was being quizzed by Sen. Homer Capehart, the Indiana "music-box master," regarding the renewal of price control.

"We don't want to destroy price control," said the senator from Indiana. "We just want to reform it so it will work. I don't see why you fellows don't co-operate."

"Senator," replied Porter, "you remind me of the fisherman who had just pulled in a whopper and then said to the fish, 'Hold still. I'm not going to hurt you, I just want to gut you a little bit'."

Horse-Trading at Paris

Secretary Byrnes's cabled reports to President Truman regarding the Big Four conference have been reasonably optimistic. Both the Russians and Byrnes seem willing to do a little horse-trading. In fact, it was horse-trading that brought about the arrangement to evacuate Soviet troops from Bulgaria.

One victory Byrnes scored was on the evacuation of Soviet troops from Bulgaria. Here's how it happened behind closed doors in Paris.

The entire Italian question was being thrashed out, and the conversation between the two men went like this. Molotov asked Byrnes:

"What's this I hear about you Americans enlarging all your airfields in Italy? Could you be planning to pull something of a permanent nature there?"

Byrnes merely smiled and said: "What's this I hear about the new Red army air bases in Bulgaria? Were you Russians planning to settle down and stay there indefinitely?"

"Where did you hear that?" asked Molotov.

"Oh," replied Byrnes, "we have our sources."

"Well," replied Molotov, "I wouldn't believe every rumor you hear about what's happening in our area."

"In that case," Byrnes snapped back, "don't believe everything you hear about what is happening in our zone."

This conversation gave birth to further discussion which finally led to the important agreement to evacuate all foreign troops from Italy and Bulgaria.

Getting Bevin's Goat

In the same discussion, Molotov turned to British Foreign Minister Bevin and asked if, while the issue of evacuating troops was under discussion the British might not like to talk about evacuating their 57,000 troops from Greece.

"That's none of your damned business," snapped Bevin.

Note—Some observers wished that Secretary Byrnes had supported Molotov in urging that the British army be withdrawn from Greece. If so, there might have been results.

Paris News Blackout

Here's what happened behind closed doors in Paris during the fight which led to the Big Four news blackout.

British Foreign Minister Bevin first proposed the blackout. Secretary Byrnes protested. He pointed out that he had to keep the American people informed of what he did in Paris, and he warned that everything would leak out sooner or later anyway.

Bevin, however, said flatly that if Britain was to get together with the other three powers on Trieste, the negotiations would have to be secret. So, reluctantly, Byrnes agreed to ending the news leaks on what is happening at the conference.

Note—At the same meeting, the Big Four named Andrei Vyshinsky; Gladwyn Jebb, of Great Britain, and Ben Cohen, of the State department, as members of the commission to investigate disposal of Italian colonies.

Deserts "Grand Old Party"

When fiery Rep. Charlie LaFollette, of Indiana, announced he was leaving the Republican party but could not join the Democratic party because of some of its members, it was too much for rootin'-tootin' Rep. John Rankin, of Mississippi. Rankin correctly guessed that LaFollette referred to him.

So the gentleman from Mississippi took the House floor, with LaFollette not present, to jeer at LaFollette's statement.

"I am reminded of the old fellow down in one of the southern states whose reputation was not the best in the world," he said. "When he died they inscribed on his tombstone this epitaph:

"'Hary ye, stranger passing by,
As you are now, so once was I.
As I am now, so you must be.
Prepare for death and follow me.'

"One of his neighbors," continued Rankin, "read this inscription and wrote these lines under it:

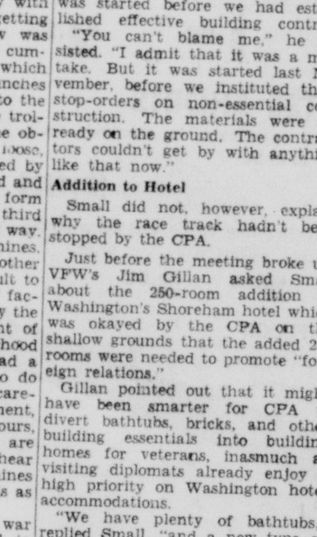

"'To follow you I'd not consent
Unless I knew which way you went'."

A day later, LaFollette took the floor to reply in his own verse:

"'If I shall start a new goal to seek,
From time to time over my shoulder I'll peek.
And if by chance I find John Rankin behind,
I'll know I'm wrong and change my mind.'"

Long, Long Ago

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

We live constantly in the regret of our youth—not to return to it, but to experience its perfect honesty of life.

That was what the poet had in mind when she wrote: "Backward, turn backward, O Time, in your flight; make me a child again, just for tonight!" There was child hunger in such an appeal. It was the cry of a sick and disillusioned soul. It was the voice of hope, in the man or woman heart, that is the voice of us all.

In childhood we look out into a world of beauty, where all is perfect, and wherein all our dreams are promptly fulfilled. But that is before sorrow comes, before disappointment, and disillusion have set in, and become a part of our experience. Even the most unhappy in childhood had their imagined utopia.

But aren't we just advanced children, sculptured in character, still with the touch of those vanished days? Still dreamers, do we not tread the silvered clouds, conscious of the inbred faith that some superior force planted in us at birth?

Our voices of expression — the poets — how they come to our rescue and sing out our thoughts! Who does not thrill to the sentiment in that old song, "The Old Oaken Bucket?" Again and again do those words flow through our being — "How dear to my heart are the scenes of my childhood, when fond recollection presents them to view."

The small town, the red and white, checkered tablecloth, the groups at the corner store, the watering trough, and band-stand that stood in the square, the peal of bells upon the Sabbath, the ring that called us back to the study room, the town marshal about the streets with that shiny star upon his breast, the smell of the drug store—or all those remembered scenes upon the little farm.

Th pictured thoughts of long, long ago hang undimmed upon the walls of our heart. The years are obliterated. Yesterday becomes today. For moments life's bitterness is sweetened. In Browning's thought, God is still in His heaven, and all is right with the world. The wrong is in ourselves!

Congress Extends Selective Service Law Nine Months

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, June 26—Despite all the pulling and hauling and the pressure from various groups in the electorate, the fact remains that the Congress of the United States has actually passed a bill to extend the selective service or draft law for nine more months.

On its face, it might seem that Congress is about to abandon the selective service idea altogether but what really has happened is something else. To stave off the political reprisals that might come at the polls in the congressional elections this autumn, the new bill, which the president is expected to sign, merely promises a nine-month extension. But if world events are unfavorable or if the armies of occupation are not supplied from volunteers, the Congress will be faced next spring with the same issue—whether to extend or discontinue the draft.

The War department fought a persistent and successful battle for draft extenstion. Its strategy improved in recent weeks as it saw the need for compromise. In the final analysis, 18-year-olds were omitted and the low limit was put at 19 years, but the army and navy have been given at the same time an opportunity to increase substantially the pay of enlisted men, which should mean an impetus to volunteering.

Expect Many Volunteers

It is being said that 18-year-olds will not be drafted when they reach 19 and that many of the 19-year-olds will not be called. This is on the assumption that the pay increase and the volunteer system works and, what is more important, that the requirements for troops in the Far East and in Europe will not increase due to food riots or other disturbances. It also assumes that peace treaties will be agreed upon and armies of occupation will be gradually reduced in size.

Nobody can predict whether these assumptions, on which War department policy is based, will turn out as planned. But it is significant that, instead of limiting the draft to those under 29, the new legislation calls for a draft between the ages of 19 and 45.

This means that the armed services have been given an assurance that they may, upon proclamation by the president of a national emergency, call into service anyone from 19 to 45 except those who have already served or are fathers.

The reason for the wider age limits has not been publicy explained, but it is assumed that the armed services feel that, if they must spread the draft over the various age groups and cannot go below 19 and cannot take fathers, they must be in a position to comb the lists of all single men up to the age of 45.

The important thing from the viewpoint of the War department is that a selective service law still remains on the statute books and that the country is not left without an emergency mechanism in case unsettled conditions in the world develop in the next few months. Also, in all probability the extension beyond March 31, 1947, of the new draft law with some modifications may be confidently expected.

President Can Seize Plants

Certainly until treaties of peace are signed and occupying armies are withdrawn, the maintenance of a means of providing troops through selective service will be continued. Likewise, in March, 1947, there will not be the same political pressure as in this year when there are congressional elections.

It is to be noted that the same selective service law which has been extended by Congress contains provisions permitting the president to seize and operate plants or facilities which are strike-bound. Thus the Smith-Connally law, or War Labor Disputes act, is also extended. Indeed, so far as this type of legislation is concerned, a state of war still exists formally, and the president may do nearly all of the things which he was empowered to do in wartime in connection with the selective service law. The basic provisions of the statute remain the same, as do the amendments. It is primarily the age limits which have been altered.

Congress thus serves notice that it has not abandoned the job of fulfilling the missions which the War and Navy departments have undertaken in the post-armistice period. This cannot but be noticed in those quarters abroad where it has been assumed that the Congress is gradually retreating to a wholly insular or isolationist position.

Movies Owe a Lot To William S. Hart

OUT IN HOLLYWOOD they said that William S. Hart "succumbed to old age" when he went to join the last roundup, as they say out West. To those of us who have enough years on our shoulders to remember Bill in the old silent days of the movies, that is hard to believe. In those days Bill seemed eternally young, indestructible, so to speak—as he had to be to survive all those hails of hot lead poured at him in one hoss opry after another from 1914 to 1926.

It seemed that nothing could kill him off. He was a two-gun hombre of the first water; he could shoot from the hip and never miss and he bore a charmed life, and believe it or not, all this without the aid of a guitar and a voice mooing 'Back in the Saddle Again".

Interesting to note is that fact that never once did the watch and warders, censors and like critters raise a peep about Bill and his movies, in which virtue always rode high, wide and handsome.

When Bill mounted his horse to engage in a screen epic of the West, he wore two full-sized six-guns, flannel shirt and his pants in his boots. His facial reactions could only be described as poker. What Bill thought of the new crop of guitar-strumming, silk-shirted screen heroes of the West who wear their pants outside their boots has not been recorded. But it is a big jump from the hearty screen fare produced by Bill to the lily-pond gamboolings of the current crop of cinema cowboys. Hart, whose income jumped in a few years from $75 a week to $8,400 as his popularity grew—big money in those days of comparatively low income taxes—retired from the screen 21 years ago.

Bill Hart, of course was the first of the movie cowboys, and he blazed the trail for Tom Mix and all the others. And the movie industry really got its start and its sustenance from the so-called hoss oprys. Pardner they are still making money on 'em.

It would be fitting for all the fancy folks out Hollywood way to pause and say a grateful prayer for old Bill Hart. It is true that Edison invented the movie—but it took fellows like Bill Hart to start it on its way.

Surely This Is Not Too Much To Ask

THE NEWS is convinced that the time has come for Congress to establish a national labor policy designed to deal with basic causes of industrial strife—a policy based on equality and responsibility in the public interest—one which will make collective bargaining work.

True collective bargaining is impossible if the bargaining parties do not come to the table on equal terms, and bear corresponding responsibility for their actions.

Today, the restrictions, the laws, and the penalties for breaking the laws, apply only to management.

An EMPLOYER IS COMPELLED by law to bargain collectively; unions have no legal responsibility to bargain at all.

An employer is forbidden to engage in unfair labor practices, and is charged with intimidation or discrimination on the slightest pretext. Labor leaders are not restrained by law from similar practices. An employer's right to free speech is so severely curtailed that he can hardly say "Good morning, Joe", to an employe without risking a charge of breaking the law. On the other hand, unions are perfectly free to make any kind of irresponsible statement about the company, without regard to facts.

It seems to this paper that EQUALITY UNDER THE LAW is the first principle necessary to a sound national labor policy.

Let's Clean House And Do It Soon

THERE ARE THOSE TODAY who say that we can always continue to borrow on the future as long as we keep "a lid on prices". If we do, we only defer the day of reckoning, and make it immensely more difficulty ultimately to clean house.

Our first and major problem is therefore our "money". While it is no doubt true that there are millions of persons who have "cash" burning in their pockets or in banks to be drawn out to buy goods and services, the problem of our money is how we shall get it in the future, and what it will be worth in buying power.

Since the federal budget was last balanced in 1930, we have borrowed unprecedented millions of dollars against our future production. This we shall have to pay for by work.

It is of little consequence whether "we owe it to ourselves" or "owe it to others". It has to be paid.

The interest alone on this debt is now around five billion dollars a year, or more than our entire federal expenditures in such prosperous times of peace as, for instance, the 1920's.

There is also the problem of paying back by production the principal of the loan.

We should find ourselves thinking twice before increasing our federal debt, because every increase means both a greater debt and a greater interest charge.

Social Security Costs Are Bound to Increase

THE HOUSE WAYS AND MEANS COMMITTEE, apparently succumbing to the propoganda of the payrollers in the social security setup in Washington, is reported to be preparing a measure "broadening" the social security program and increasing the "contributions" of employers and employes. In the whole history of the nation, there has never been a campaign comparible to that which these birds in fat jobs with social security have engaged in from its inception to "broaden" its scope and increase its taxes.

Veterans of World War II and families are to get the benefits of the program for three years. Maritime workers are to be brought within its provisions. Altmeyer, head of social security, wants to bring in 20 million other persons not now covered by old age and other insurance features. After January 1, under the scheme, contributions will be advanced from one per cent to two and one-half per cent for both employer and employe.

This proposed increase anticipates the probability that, as it is "liberalized," the social security fund will run into money trouble later on. During these flush money times there is an excess of income over outgo and the reserve fund totals nearly seven billion dollars. Officials estimate that disbursements will catch up with receipts about 1955, at the present rate of contribution—and expenditures—and in 20 years all reserves will be dissipated unless more money comes in.

In March, 1,300,000 persons were receiving age pensions and survivors' benefit payments out of the fund. By the end of this year the number will increase to two million. Altmeyer says that eventually there will be so many recipients that the cost will necessitate, not a one per cent or two per cent payroll tax, but a seven per cent tax. Were he to give his enthusiasm full rein, there is little doubt that he would be able to envision a tax rate much higher than that.

Labor Problems Beset Farmers In Haying Season

By MARK SULLIVAN

AVONDALE, CHESTER COUNTY, Pa.—To the farmers hereabout came the labor problem. It was not a matter of farm labor, of employed workers there are few. On the family-sized farms that mainly compose this community, most of the work is done by the farmers and members of their families. Such employed workers as there are have had long-continued and happy relations. It was the national labor problem that descended upon the community. It came at the height of the haying season.

Hay is cut, left long enough to dry in the sun, then baled in the field and taken to the barn. Baling in the field has become increasingly the practice. The ancient custom of taking a hay wagon to the field, pitching the loose hay upon it, going to the barn, then pitching the hay from wagon to mow, has for several years been passing away. Persons who have old photographs of loaded hay wagons, especially one drawn by horses, should preserve them, for they are becoming a record of the past almost as remote from modern farm life as Currier and Ives prints of men mowing hay by hand, with scythes.

Neighbors Co-Operate

Almost equally obsolete are pictures of farmers pitching hay with a fork. Long ago the labor of getting loose hay from field to mow was shortened, at the barn, by a cumbersome mechanical device which could lift the hay in big bunches from the wagon and carry it to the mow by a kind of cumbersome trolley. Lately that too has become obsolete. To avoid handling hay loose, has become a necessity enforced by ost. Baling the hay in the field and handling it in this compact form consumes perhaps less than a third of the labor entailed by the old way.

Hay balers are heavy machines. During the war they, like other farm machinery, became difficult to get, because of the diversion of factories to war work. This scarcity the farmers endured as an incident of war. There arose a neighborhood co-operation. A farmer who had a usable machine would use it to do his neighbors' work. This took careful timing and pre-arrangement, and long and concentrated hours, for the seasons of farm work are short. It was not unusual to hear the hum of balers or other machines coming across the moon-lit fields as late as 10 o'clock at night.

But a year ago, when the war ended, farmers looked forward to replenishing their worn machinery. Probably most farmers, during the summer of 1945, as they got along with worn machinery, or in some cases without machines at all, hopefully anticipated that by the harvest of 1946 they could get new machines and with them some amelioration of work and anxiety. But as the present haying season approached, farmers were told that new balers were scarce or not to be had. The reasons they were told included prolonged strikes in factories making farm machinery.

Much Hay Is Ruined

To this detriment was added, during June, untimely rains. A farmer mowed his hay, and had the day or two of sunshine necessary to dry it. At that point if he had a baler of his own, he could have got his hay to the barn. But while waiting for neighborhood balers, generously willing but hard-pressed, rain fell for two to three days. That meant waiting for more sunshine to dry out the hay. Even so, much of the food value of the hay was lost by the wetting and second drying. In some cases, after the second drying, came yet more rain. This practically dstroyed the food value of the hay. It was not worth salvaging.

What this will mean in the form of less milk for city consumers next winter or higher cost of milk due to buying hay that is scarce and likely to be high priced, every farmer knows—to calculate accurately the transmuting of hay and other form of stock feed into milk is part of a modern farmer's education. He knows too, the practical grass-roots phase of the national economic problems arising out of the labor situation, and out of prices and the Office of Price Administration.

So far as the farmer sees labor difficulties as a cause of food scarcity, he is likely to be unsympathetic. Reading in the papers or hearing by radio disputes about an eight-hour day and a five-day week, the farmer reflects upon the length of his own work-day which, in seasons of reaping and planting, begins at milking time, half past five or so in the morning, and continues into moonlight hours in the field.

WHAT YOU CAN'T GO THROUGH OR OVER, YOU CAN USUALLY GO AROUND

THE WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON

Washington, June 26. — Civilian Production Administrator Jack Small, worried over race-track construction while veterans are denied homes, has now sent out orders to his branch offices to spur veterans' housing.

Some of these problems were discussed with Small at a recent closed-door meeting with representatives of the major veterans' groups, when Wesley Pearce, of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, broached the subject of the new race track in Monmouth county, N. J., which is being built with CPA okay.

"Now, wait a minute," interrupted Small. "That particular race track was started before we had established effective building controls.

"You can't blame me," he insisted. "I admit that it was a mistake. But it was started last November, before we instituted these stop-orders on non-essential construction. The materials were already on the ground. The contractors couldn't get by with anything like that now."

Addition to Hotel

Small did not, however, explain why the race track hadn't been stopped by the CPA.

Just before the meeting broke up, VFW's Jim Gillan asked Small about the 250-room addition to Washington's Shoreham hotel which was okayed by the CPA on the shallow grounds that the added 250 rooms were needed to promote "foreign relations."

Gillan pointed out that it might have been smarter for CPA to divert bathtubs, bricks, and other building essentials into building homes for veterans, inasmuch as visiting diplomats already enjoy a high priority on Washington hotel accommodations.

"We have plenty of bathtubs," replied Small, "and a new type of non-essential flooring material for the Shoreham which won't interfere with construction shortages."

Before veterans' spokesmen could pin him down on the number of essential housing items going into the Shoreham annex, including bricks, the CPA boss announced that he had an appointment with the secretary of war and ended the conference.

Getting the OPA

OPA Administrator Paul Porter was being quizzed by Sen. Homer Capehart, the Indiana "music-box master," regarding the renewal of price control.

"We don't want to destroy price control," said the senator from Indiana. "We just want to reform it so it will work. I don't see why you fellows don't co-operate."

"Senator," replied Porter, "you remind me of the fisherman who had just pulled in a whopper and then said to the fish, 'Hold still. I'm not going to hurt you, I just want to gut you a little bit'."

Horse-Trading at Paris

"In that case," Byrnes snapped back, "don't believe everything you hear about what is happening in our zone."

This conversation gave birth to further discussion which finally led to the important agreement to evacuate all foreign troops from Italy and Bulgaria.

Getting Bevin's Goat

In the same discussion, Molotov turned to British Foreign Minister Bevin and asked if, while the issue of evacuating troops was under discussion the British might not like to talk about evacuating their 57,000 troops from Greece.

"That's none of your damned business," snapped Bevin.

In childhood we look out into a world of beauty, where all is perfect, and wherein all our dreams are promptly fulfilled. But that is before sorrow comes, before disappointment, and disillusion have set in, and become a part of our experience. Even the most unhappy in childhood had their imagined utopia.

But aren't we just advanced children, sculptured in character, still with the touch of those vanished days? Still dreamers, do we not tread the silvered clouds, conscious of the inbred faith that some superior force planted in us at birth?

Our voices of expression — the poets — how they come to our rescue and sing out our thoughts! Who does not thrill to the sentiment in that old song, "The Old Oaken Bucket?" Again and again do those words flow through our being — "How dear to my heart are the scenes of my childhood, when fond recollection presents them to view."

The small town, the red and white, checkered tablecloth, the groups at the corner store, the watering trough, and band-stand that stood in the square, the peal of bells upon the Sabbath, the ring that called us back to the study room, the town marshal about the streets with that shiny star upon his breast, the smell of the drug store—or all those remembered scenes upon the little farm.

Th pictured thoughts of long, long ago hang undimmed upon the walls of our heart. The years are obliterated. Yesterday becomes today. For moments life's bitterness is sweetened. In Browning's thought, God is still in His heaven, and all is right with the world. The wrong is in ourselves!

Congress Extends Selective Service Law Nine Months

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, June 26—Despite all the pulling and hauling and the pressure from various groups in the electorate, the fact remains that the Congress of the United States has actually passed a bill to extend the selective service or draft law for nine more months.

On its face, it might seem that Congress is about to abandon the selective service idea altogether but what really has happened is something else. To stave off the political reprisals that might come at the polls in the congressional elections this autumn, the new bill, which the president is expected to sign, merely promises a nine-month extension. But if world events are unfavorable or if the armies of occupation are not supplied from volunteers, the Congress will be faced next spring with the same issue—whether to extend or discontinue the draft.

The War department fought a persistent and successful battle for draft extenstion. Its strategy improved in recent weeks as it saw the need for compromise. In the final analysis, 18-year-olds were omitted and the low limit was put at 19 years, but the army and navy have been given at the same time an opportunity to increase substantially the pay of enlisted men, which should mean an impetus to volunteering.

Expect Many Volunteers

It is being said that 18-year-olds will not be drafted when they reach 19 and that many of the 19-year-olds will not be called. This is on the assumption that the pay increase and the volunteer system works and, what is more important, that the requirements for troops in the Far East and in Europe will not increase due to food riots or other disturbances. It also assumes that peace treaties will be agreed upon and armies of occupation will be gradually reduced in size.

Nobody can predict whether these assumptions, on which War department policy is based, will turn out as planned. But it is significant that, instead of limiting the draft to those under 29, the new legislation calls for a draft between the ages of 19 and 45.

This means that the armed services have been given an assurance that they may, upon proclamation by the president of a national emergency, call into service anyone from 19 to 45 except those who have already served or are fathers.

The reason for the wider age limits has not been publicy explained, but it is assumed that the armed services feel that, if they must spread the draft over the various age groups and cannot go below 19 and cannot take fathers, they must be in a position to comb the lists of all single men up to the age of 45.

The important thing from the viewpoint of the War department is that a selective service law still remains on the statute books and that the country is not left without an emergency mechanism in case unsettled conditions in the world develop in the next few months. Also, in all probability the extension beyond March 31, 1947, of the new draft law with some modifications may be confidently expected.

President Can Seize Plants

Certainly until treaties of peace are signed and occupying armies are withdrawn, the maintenance of a means of providing troops through selective service will be continued. Likewise, in March, 1947, there will not be the same political pressure as in this year when there are congressional elections.

It is to be noted that the same selective service law which has been extended by Congress contains provisions permitting the president to seize and operate plants or facilities which are strike-bound. Thus the Smith-Connally law, or War Labor Disputes act, is also extended. Indeed, so far as this type of legislation is concerned, a state of war still exists formally, and the president may do nearly all of the things which he was empowered to do in wartime in connection with the selective service law. The basic provisions of the statute remain the same, as do the amendments. It is primarily the age limits which have been altered.

Congress thus serves notice that it has not abandoned the job of fulfilling the missions which the War and Navy departments have undertaken in the post-armistice period. This cannot but be noticed in those quarters abroad where it has been assumed that the Congress is gradually retreating to a wholly insular or isolationist position.

Baldwin Suffers His Major Loss In Home County

TOWSON, Md., June 26 (AP)—Rep. H. Streett Baldwin, who failed in his bid for the governorship, appeared today to have lost considerably more than that in Maryland's primary election.

The major loss of the Second district congressman, who gave up his seat in the national House to try for the Democratic nomination for governor, came in his own home county of Baltimore, where control of county politics apparently was wrested from his hands.

Baldwin, long a powerful figure in Baltimore county, was roundly beaten there by William Preston Lane, Jr., the Democratic nominee for governor, and his own slate of candidates for county offices didn't fare too well.

Only a few of Baldwin's hand-picked candidates were elected to minor county offices and the three men whom he most pointedly opposed were renominated to serve as county commissioners.

Emerging as a dominant figure in Baltimore county politics after a bitter primary campaign was Christian H. Kahl, 40-year-old accountant from Reisterstown and president of the board of county commissioners.

Kahl and his incumbent running mates, John R. Haut and Bremen A. Trail, were renominated by a majority of some 2,000 votes over the Baldwin candidates and another slate running on a county-manager ticket.

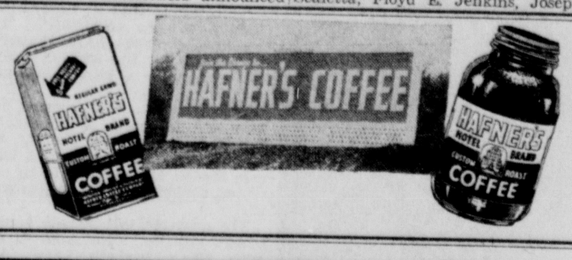

Thus, Kahl and his associates seemed to have gained the upper hand over Baldwin. Formerly their political mentor, Baldwin dropped the three incumbents from his organization early in the campaign.

Kahl, Haut and Trail then decided to run as independents.

During the campaign, the three incumbent commissioners were indicted on nine counts of misfeasance in office in connection with water and sewer contracts, but were acquitted.

After being repudiated by Baldwin, the commissioners announced they would campaign independently of his organization and would make the water and sewer contracts their main issue.

All three supported Lane, who defeated Baldwin in his own home county.

ROCKVILLE, Md., June 26 (AP) — Montgomery county's basic tax rate of $1.50 on each $100 assessable valuation has been continued for the next fiscal year, the county commissioners announced.

WASHINGTON, June 26—(AP)—A $50,000,000 United States credit to Poland, suspended since May, was finally granted today after Poland promised to lift the veil of secrecy on her economic pacts with Russia and other nations.

all delegates accepted without a vote some individual sentences contained in both the British-Australian resolution and a Polish resolution.

No complete resolution on the question was adopted, however, since the delegates could not agree with all provisions of either plan.

Gromyko used the veto first when the council voted on a proposal offered by Evatt to keep the Spanish case before the council "without prejudice to the rights of the General Assembly" to take the case up latter.

Question of Procedure

Then after Francisco Castillo Najera, president of the council, ruled that this was a question of procedure and, therefore, not subject to the veto, Gromyko invoked he veto to defeat a majority vote upholding the president's ruling.

Although some of the delegates contended that Russia had no right to use the veto even on the second question, Castillo Najera ruled that this was a question of "substance" and that the majority opinion was rejected.

The council's vote for the British Australian proposal was 9 to 2, with Russia and Poland in the negative. The president first announced that it was adopted, but Gromyko promptly raised the veto issue.

He contended that the proposal was defeated because of his vote against it. The president disagreed, but after a sharp exchange of words he agreed to let the council decide whether the proposal was a question of procedure or a substance.

The vote on this question was 8 to 2 with Poland abstaining. Russia and France voted in the negative.

New Trap Is Being Used In Jap Beetle Control

A new type of Japanese beetle trap is being used in this area to combat the destructive insects, with about 25 of the devices placed at strategic points were infestation was greatest last year, County Agent R. F. McHenry said yesterday.

The work of placing hundreds of traps throughout the county has been started under the direction of Hugh Sevenson, Ellerslie. A station will be established next week in the basement of the court house where persons who do not have traps placed on their properties by the county workers may lease traps, paying 20 cents for two seasons.

$50,000,000 U. S. Credit To Poland Is Granted

WASHINGTON, June 26—(AP)—A $50,000,000 United States credit to Poland, suspended since May, was finally granted today after Poland promised to lift the veil of secrecy on her economic pacts with Russia and other nations.

The State department announced that three complaints of Poland's failure to live up to the commitments under which the credit was originally authorized on April 24 had been met. Therefore "this government has acceded to the request of the Polish provisional government and has authorized" restoration of the credit together with the resumption of the delivery of surplus property to finance which the credit was granted.

In addition, officials expected there would now be an early signing of a Polish contract with the export-import bank for a $40,000,000 American loan. No action had been taken on the contract while the surplus property credit was in suspension.

The camp is open to club members in Allegany, Garrett and Washington counties who are 11 years of age or older. Boys under 14 who attended last year's camp will also be permitted to attend.

"Every statesmen and every private individual who believes in the United Nations must therefore devote himself to the proposition that agreement among the powers not only is desirable but is absolutely and utterly necessary," he said.

Recoveries among Rails, Industrials Steady Stock Market to Some Extent

NEW YORK, June 26 (AP) — Selective recoveries among rails and industries steadied the stock market to some extent today but a number of "thin" blue chips continued to dip one to four points on light transactions while many leaders edged into lower territory.

Timid bids appeared in the final hour on the idea that the list may have been oversold. While declines were well in the majority at the close, a number of pivotals finished with plus signs. Dealings, slack most of the time, turned fairly active at intervals and transfers totalled 1,020,000 shares compared with 880,000 Tuesday.

Speculative and investment caution again was attributed mainly to doubts regarding the compromise price control legislation and the thought that corporate net might be affected in coming months by consumer opposition to rising costs.

Improved were United States Steel, Bethlehem, Republic Steel, Goodyear, United States Rubber, Goodrich, New York Central, Great Northern, Baltimore and Ohio, du Pont, Johns-Manville and General Electric.

Decliners included General Motors Chrysler, Northern Pacific, Chesapeake and Ohio, Montgomery Ward, International Harvester, American Telephone, American Smelting, Schenley, Philip Morris, Electric Power and Light and Consolidated Edison.

Retreating in the Curb were American Gas, Raymond Concrete, Solar Manufacturing, Starrett Corporation, Electric Bond and Share and United States Foil "B." Turnover here was 390,000 shares versus 370,000 yesterday.

A wide list of obligations of railroads in reorganization were under moderate pressure in the bond market, while other corporates held within narrow limits.

Total sales of $4,020,000 compared with $3,550,000 Tuesday.

United States government issues registered slight advances in outside markets, and were quiet on the exchange. Here the 2½s of June '72-'67 lost five-thirty-seconds of a point to 103 27-32.

Recoveries among Rails, Industrials Steady Stock Market to Some Exten!

NEW YORK, June 26 (AP) — Selective recoveries among rails and industries steadied the stock market to some extent today but a number of "thin" blue chips continued to dip one to four points on light transactions while many leaders edged into lower territory.

Timid bids appeared in the final hour on the idea that the list may have been oversold. While declines were well in the majority at the close, a number of pivotals finished with plus signs. Dealings, slack most of the time, turned fairly active at intervals and transfers totalled 1,020,000 shares compared with 880,000 Tuesday.

Speculative and investment caution again was attributed mainly to doubts regarding the compromise price control legislation and the thought that corporate net might be affected in coming months by consumer opposition to rising costs.

Improved were United States Steel, Bethlehem, Republic Steel, Goodyear, United States Rubber, Goodrich, New York Central, Great Northern, Baltimore and Ohio, du Pont, Johns-Manville and General Electric.

Decliners included General Motors Chrysler, Northern Pacific, Chesapeake and Ohio, Montgomery Ward, International Harvester, American Telephone, American Smelting, Schenley, Philip Morris, Electric Power and Light and Consolidated Edison.

Retreating in the Curb were American Gas, Raymond Concrete, Solar Manufacturing, Starrett Corporation, Electric Bond and Share and United States Foil "B." Turnover here was 390,000 shares versus 370,000 yesterday.

A wide list of obligations of railroads in reorganization were under moderate pressure in the bond market, while other corporates held within narrow limits.

Total sales of $4,020,000 compared with $3,550,000 Tuesday.

United States government issues registered slight advances in outside markets, and were quiet on the exchange. Here the 2½s of June '72-'67 lost five-thirty-seconds of a point to 103 27-32.

Undulant Fever Is Easily Prevented, Doctor Declares

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M. D.

What a pity that anybody should contract undulant fever, not only because this stubborn infection is difficult to treat, but also because it is so easily preventable. If all dairy products consumed in the United States were pasteurized, we would almost never hear of a case of undulant fever.

Prevention is as easy as that in most cases, and yet thousands of people come down with this long-drawn-out, weakening disease every year simply because they keep on drinking raw milk.

Undulant fever is caused by a germ belonging to what is known as the brucella group.

As a general rule, the symptoms of the disorder develop about two weeks after the infection is acquired. There are marked weakness, sweating, chills and generalized aching. Often there may be some running of the nose and coughing. Fever is present in practically all cases.

According to Dr. Charles G. Baker, Lexington, Kentucky, the symptoms of undulant fever vary to a great extent.

Weakness May Persist

For example, in one type of case, weakness and irritability may persist for weeks even though the fever disappears within one to six days after the disorder starts. This type may often be confused with influenza. In another type the patient has a normal temperature in the morning with fever in the afternoon, varying from 101 to 104 degrees. After a period of six to sixteen weeks the fever disappears.

In still another group of cases the disorder starts gradually with pains in the muscles and in the neck, and with headache and fever in the afternoon. The fever gradually becomes higher and finally may reach 104 degrees, whereupon the patient develops severe weakness, irritability, sleeplessness, sweating, constipation and loss of weight.

Then, within a day or so, the temperature returns to normal and the symptoms clear up to a great extent. However, after a few days, the fever recurs and the other symptoms come back again.

Accurate Diagnosis

The most accurate way of diagnosing undulant fever is by finding the germs in the blood. Another method of diagnosis is the use of a skin test which is made by injecting into the skin a killed culture of brucella germ. Redness will occur where the injection is given if the person has had undulant fever. However, a positive test does not mean that active infection is present.

The treatment of undulant fever consists of rest in bed, the giving of fluids, and measures to relieve fever and pain. The sulfonamide drugs have been helpful in some cases. Blood taken from a person who has recovered from the disease may be helpful in occasional instances when injected into a vein. However, the disease is a most difficult one to cure.

This disease is not spread directly from man to man. It must be acquired from handling infected animals or from eating their products. In this lies the secret of its prevention. Even though a case might crop up now and then among those who must work directly with animals, the great majority of cases that doctors are now called on to treat would never occur at all if people generally insisted on pasteurization of all dairy products.

Undulant Fever Is Easily Prevented, Doctor Declares

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M. D.

What a pity that anybody should contract undulant fever, not only because this stubborn infection is difficult to treat, but also because it is so easily preventable. If all dairy products consumed in the United States were pasteurized, we would almost never hear of a case of undulant fever.

Prevention is as easy as that in most cases, and yet thousands of people come down with this long-drawn-out, weakening disease every year simply because they keep on drinking raw milk.

Undulant fever is caused by a germ belonging to what is known as the brucella group.

As a general rule, the symptoms of the disorder develop about two weeks after the infection is acquired. There are marked weakness, sweating, chills and generalized aching. Often there may be some running of the nose and coughing. Fever is present in practically all cases.

According to Dr. Charles G. Baker, Lexington, Kentucky, the symptoms of undulant fever vary to a great extent.

Weakness May Persist

For example, in one type of case, weakness and irritability may persist for weeks even though the fever disappears within one to six days after the disorder starts. This type may often be confused with influenza. In another type the patient has a normal temperature in the morning with fever in the afternoon varying from 101 to 104 degrees. After a period of six to sixteen weeks the fever disappears.

In still another group of cases the disorder starts gradually with pains in the muscles and in the neck, and with headache and fever in the afternoon. The fever gradually becomes higher and finally may reach 104 degrees, whereupon the patient develops severe weakness, irritability, sleeplessness, sweating, constipation and loss of weight.

Then, within a day or so, the temperature returns to normal and the symptoms clear up to a great extent. However, after a few days, the fever recurs and the other symptoms come back again.

Accurate Diagnosis

The most accurate way of diagnosing undulant fever is by finding the germs in the blood. Another method of diagnosis is the use of a skin test which is made by injecting into the skin a killed culture of brucella germ. Redness will occur where the injection is given if the person has had undulant fever. However, a positive test does not mean that active infection is present.

The treatment of undulant fever consists of rest in bed, the giving of fluids, and measures to relieve fever and pain. The sulfonamide drugs have been helpful in some cases. Blood taken from a person who has recovered from the disease may be helpful in occasional instances when injected into a vein. However, the disease is a most difficult one to cure.

This disease is not spread directly from man to man. It must be acquired from handling infected animals or from eating their products. In this lies the secret of its prevention. Even though a case might crop up now and then among those who must work directly with animals, the great majority of cases that doctors are now called on to treat would never occur at all if people generally insisted on pasteurization of all dairy products.

I AM NOT RESIGNED

I've been running into some major hunks of bad luck during the last few years. There's nothing unusual about that—so have most of the rest of the human race. And those who are generous enough to be interested in my private affairs have written me very kind and moving notes.

They tell me of the deep trouble they've had too and how desperate and discouraged they've grown in the face of it. They wonder how I can continue to write so buoyantly in spite of it all. Have I some secret formula for fortitude? Have I discovered the magic power of faith and resignation? In short, how do I get this way?

I'm not aware that I've gotten any particular way, my friends. I'm truly grateful for any sympathy you send me and don't mind in the least being admired for my superior virtues, even if I don't possess them. But I do think that a little general housecleaning on this whole subject of bad-breaks-and-how-to-take-them might be good medicine for us all.

Whatever else I may or may not be, these facts are true. I am not brave. I am scared stiff most of the time. I do not even have the consolation of feeling that my scars have been gloriously won. I know darned well that I stuck out my neck and asked for most of them. And above all, let me stoutly affirm this—I am not resigned to any trouble which has come my way and I would feel like a contemptible heel if I were tempted to be so.

This may seem shocking blasphemy to many good folk. I do not mean it as such. I have a profound belief in and reverence for the great Power which created us, and I have also the warmest enthusiasm for life although I haven't the slightest notion what it's all about. I mean no cynicism when I say—"I am not resigned." I simply mean that I despise resignation in general and am convinced that there are scores of braver and more intelligent answers to the mishaps which befall us.

Resignation, however, is a very ancient practice and peddled with much gusto by certain ones who claim to be pious. Personally, I think it's lousy. A worm, being the spineless creature that it is, might reasonably claim to be resigned since it has neither the brains nor the brawn to be anything else. But that any man whom God hath endowed with the magic of His own flame should grovel and whimper under the lash of misfortune seems to me utterly contemptible.

They once blamed God for the plague, and solemnly enjoined the dying to bow to His will. We know today that the plague was the direct result of human filth, laziness and inhumanity, and that God had nothing to do with it except, I fondly hope, to heap considerable well-deserved contempt upon the vicious fools who were responsible. And I honestly believe that that fact applies to most human misfortunes.

I have no private information concerning God, but I am quite sure that He who made such charm and beauty, such strength and wonder, such love and heroism and true piety, had no place in His plan for vicious punishments or cruel blights. Out of His infinite wisdom He created a world which runs by rule. We know a few of those rules — most of them we don't. But I am certain that every rule, if man could only comprehend it and obey it, would lead to health and happiness and harmony. And I consider it the height of blasphemy to say that "we are resigned to the will of God" when we're simply too stupid or lazy to get out and tackle the problem with the tools He gave us.

No, I'm not expounding any particular religion nor advocating any certain philosophy. This whole problem seems to me to be a straightforward matter of common sense and fair play. Whoever created us gave us the answers when He did so. He placed those answers in our own brains and hearts, in our imaginations and our backbones. There is nothing mysterious about most of them. We could, with a modicum of courage and intelligence, spare ourselves nine-tenths of the jams we get into and endure all other unavoidable grief with fortitude.

It's up to you, my hearties. You have what it takes in any emergency. If you haven't the courage to use it, why blame it on God? Or run around in dizzy circles when fate hands you a well-deserved kick in the teeth?

This GI's Bride Plays into Hands Of American Girls

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX
Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My son married an English girl two years ago. They have a 7-month-old baby. My daughter-in-law came to this country three months ago and is making her home with us. My husband and I are very good to her and we do everything we can to make her happy.

Three weeks ago she told me that she wanted to divorce my son; that she wasn't in love with him but had to be married to get into this country, which was her aim. She also told me my son was not the father of her baby. This was a shock to me, and I know it will be a terrible blow to my son. She told me that since I was his mother I should be the one to tell my boy. I know he will be heartbroken as he is planning on so many things when he gets home.

My husband and I have talked our heads off to her in an effort to save their marriage and get her to give my son a chance. I'm even willing to forget what she told me, if only she will be a good wife and mother and try to do the right thing. Please try to help me.

A VERY WORRIED MOTHER

It is a very sad thing that this girl does not realize how lucky she has been in marrying into such a loving and loyal family. It is too bad, too, that she should let other English brides coming over here down in such a way, and play right into the hands of American girls who resent marriages between GIs and women of other countries.

But do not let her put on you the responsibility of breaking any such news to your son. You should refuse to do it. It is definitely up to her, and she is doing a cowardly thing in trying to shift the matter to your shoulders.

In any event, she has, I take it, no grounds for divorcing your son, and so is unlikely to be able to accomplish her purpose very readily. While he is still in service, I do not think the law would allow her to do it anyhow, without his consent. So do not worry too much about it until he gets home, when the whole situation may change. He may be able to persuade her into a more healthy point of view where you cannot. Can't you just let things rest, without discussing them too much, until then?

Indifferent Youth

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm a young girl in my early teens, and very unhappy, all because of a boy who goes to school with me. I think an awful lot of him; in fact, I think some day I'll love him.

My problem is, at school he treats me as if he really cares, but when I meet him out somewhere, sometimes he speaks to me and sometimes you'd think he didn't even know me.

I know you'll tell me to forget him, but it's impossible. I have tried, and didn't succeed, because I see him every day. I have also tried ignoring him and tried to make him jealous.

No doubt one reason why you're so interested in this boy, and so anxious to make him notice you, is just because he seems so indifferent. It's always the thing that's out of our reach, the person who seems unattainable, that seems most desirable.

So why can't you apply that principle the other way round, and instead of doing everything you can to attract this boy, and letting him [illegible] you're just waiting impatiently for his attention, concentrate on [illegible] interests and other people? Not with the idea of trying to make him jealous, or conscious of the fact that you're obviously ignoring him, but with the idea of not putting all your eggs in one basket. Perhaps, if he finds that he's got to go to a little trouble to get your own attention, and that you have other interests besides him, it may intrigue him. If it doesn't, at least you'll have diverted yourself in other directions, which will be all to the good.

It is too bad, too, that she should let other English brides coming over here down in such a way, and play right into the hands of American girls who resent marriages between GIs and women of other countries.

But do not let her put on you the responsibility of breaking any such news to your son. You should refuse to do it. It is definitely up to her, and she is doing a cowardly thing in trying to shift the matter to your shoulders.

In any event, she has, I take it, no grounds for divorcing your son, and so is unlikely to be able to accomplish her purpose very readily. While he is still in service, I do not think the law would allow her to do it anyhow, without his consent. So do not worry too much about it until he gets home, when the whole situation may change. He may be able to persuade her into a more healthy point of view where you cannot. Can't you just let things rest, without discussing them too much, until then?

Indifferent Youth

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm a young girl in my early teens, and very unhappy, all because of a boy who goes to school with me. I think an awful lot of him; in fact, I think some day I'll love him.

My problem is, at school he treats me as if he really cares, but when I meet him out somewhere, sometimes he speaks to me and sometimes you'd think he didn't even know me.

I know you'll tell me to forget him, but it's impossible. I have tried, and didn't succeed, because I see him every day. I have also tried ignoring him and tried to make him jealous.

No doubt one reason why you're so interested in this boy, and so anxious to make him notice you, is just because he seems so indifferent. It's always the thing that's out of our reach, the person who seems unattainable, that seems most desirable.

So why can't you apply that principle the other way round, and instead of doing everything you can to attract this boy, and letting him [illegible] you're just waiting impatiently for his attention, concentrate on [illegible] interests and other people? Not with the idea of trying to make him jealous, or conscious of the fact that you're obviously ignoring him, but with the idea of not putting all your eggs in one basket. Perhaps, if he finds that he's got to go to a little trouble to get your own attention, and that you have other interests besides him, it may intrigue him. If it doesn't, at least you'll have diverted yourself in other directions, which will be all to the good.

Government Wage

"In a system of free enterprise, business can adjust the selling price to meet the costs and competition. Industry is not at present a free enterprise and is unfortunately operating under conflicting economic principles wherein labor is encouraged to make wage demands under a fluid wage policy and industry is severely restricted by a government-controlled price level for its goods. Thus industry is controlled on selling price, while labor is free to claim increases to the limit permitted by the controlled price level.

"Obviously, labor's demands must take into consideration how far it is economically possible to force wages up and still hold prices down.

Caution Is Urged

"In protecting their respective interests, industry and labor must somehow avoid taking undue advantage of such a muddled and conflicting situation as now exists.

"Industry is not in business for the good of its health. It exists to make a reasonable return on its investment.

"It is well known that any business must sell a considerable proportion of its product before it makes any profit over all costs. It is on the top half of production that profits are made. In its plan to aid starving Europe, the United States Government reduced the Brewery's grain quota by 30%. There is no quarrel with this plan, but the cut almost wiped out the profit margin on the small local breweries. The reduced output left little money in the business with which to meet the wage demands of labor and no board of directors could accept the responsibility for granting wage increases which would run its business into debt. Under such conditions, the Board had to know what price increase the OPA would grant and be satisfied that it was sufficient to operate at a profit after meeting all costs.

Situation Developed

"Thus there developed a situation where the brewery workers claimed (and with some logic) that they were entitled to the same 18½ cents increases recently granted workers of other industries, while the breweries were without the profit with which to meet the whole wage demand without assurances from the OPA that the price relief would be sufficient to pay that increase and still permit them to operate at a profit. Fortunately that assurance was received Monday. Had it been unduly delayed, the breweries most likely would have remained closed until assured of adequate price relief, unless the workers were willing to work and take a gamble of increased wages through price relief. The working of an economic contradiction of fluid wages and controlled prices is clearly illustrated."

"Canada clearly demonstrated that such an economic absurdity could be avoided," Mr. Small continued.

"When Canada adopted wartime price control she did it boldly and courageously. She not only showed the way to this country in bringing wages and prices under control but she is now giving the USA a lesson in decontrol.

"Our living costs have increased 33 per cent to date while the Canadian figure has been held to 20 per cent despite the fact that Canada has to import from countries less successful than she in controlling price levels.

"In Canada, wage increases have been limited largely to adjustments as between like jobs and like localities and conditional on there being no consequent increase in prices to drain the pocketbook of the consumer.

Failed To Hold Line

"This is the policy advocated by President Truman after V-J day until surrender to political expediency for the present economic absurdity whereby the government is endeavoring to impose an inflexible control of prices, while removing wage controls and actually initiating a series of substantial wage increases. It was inevitable that the price of steel, automobiles, coal and beer should follow the upward trend of wages. How much better would it have been for all concerned had the government held determinedly to fixed wages and fixed prices with the wage earner knowing what his dollar would buy.

"In announcing the Canadian control policy on January 31 last, Prime Minister King said, among other things: 'To provide jobs, there must be an inventive to permit business, large and small, to take the risks involved in expanding operations and in entering on new lines of activity — The administration of price control must — necessarily be more flexible than it was in wartime. From the beginning of reconversion the government has been determined that price control should not be allowed to restrict the expansion of peacetime production—wage and salary controls are an essential feature of the stabilization program. Inflationary pressures are such that removal of wage control is not yet feasible—The one satisfactory answer to the danger of inflation is more and more production.'

"Killing the Goose"

Mr. Small noted that in suspending certain items from the price ceiling, Prime Minister King pointed out that "the production of most of the articles suspended from price ceiling have improved to the point where material price increases are not anticipated. Expanding production, competition and self restraint on the part of the producers and distributors concerned should protect the public from serious price advances—It is most desirable that the board should concentrate its efforts on the more important commodities."

King said the Canadians "plan to protect the people of Canada from a sharp upswing in prices and living costs and from the inevitable aftermath of deflation, unemployment and distress."

In commenting on King's statement, Small declared, "the Canadians are not chasing any will-o'-the wisp. They realize that real wages are what you can buy for the money you get for your work—truly a realistic approach—while we are gradually killing the goose that laid the golden egg."

Singapore Suffers From Some Inflation

SINGAPORE (AP)—A shilling (16 cents) for a glass of water, five pence (about seven cents) extra for ice to cool a beer and five shillings ten penny (about 95 cents) for a good cinema seat are sample prices relaxation-hungry British and Allied servicemen report being charged in Singapore. Despite mention in the House of Commons, prices show no signs of descending. Servicemen say a normal week's pay will last just one day in town.

FROSTBURGER SINGS WITH NOTED CHOIR

MANTEO, Roanoke Island, N. C., June 26—George D. Truly, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Truly, 28 Hope Road, Frostburg, Md., student at Westminster Choir college in Princeton, N. J., is on Roanoke Island this summer with that school's famous choir singing in the Lost Colony for the summertime presentation of Paul Green's drama, "The Lost Colony."

The drama depicts Sir Walter Raleigh's attempt to found a settlement in the New World and is presented on the actual site where his colonists landed and built their homes.

The production, performed 223 times during the five-year period from 1937 through 1941 and witnessed by more than 400,000 persons during that time, opens its sixth season on June 30 and will run until September 2, with shows being given nightly the first week and on Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday nights thereafter.

The Lost Colony Chorus is an integral part of the production, for Green makes use of music, the dance and pantomime in telling this poignant story. The songs are for the most part old English songs of the late Sixteenth century period, with arrangements by Lamar Stringfield and Adeline McCall.

In addition to singing for the Lost Colony, the choir members will rehearse here this summer for their fall and winter concert tours. They will sing for religious services each Sunday in the open air amphitheater at historic old Fort Raleigh, and may give weekly radio broadcasts.

"In a system of free enterprise, business can adjust the selling price to meet the costs and competition. Industry is not at present a free enterprise and is unfortunately operating under conflicting economic principles wherein labor is encouraged to make wage demands under a fluid wage policy and industry is severely restricted by a government-controlled price level for its goods. Thus industry is controlled on selling price, while labor is free to claim increases to the limit permitted by the controlled price level.

"Obviously, labor's demands must take into consideration how far it is economically possible to force wages up and still hold prices down.

Caution Is Urged

"In protecting their respective interests, industry and labor must somehow avoid taking undue advantage of such a muddled and conflicting situation as now exists.

"Industry is not in business for the good of its health. It exists to make a reasonable return on its investment.

"It is well known that any business must sell a considerable proportion of its product before it makes any profit over all costs. It is on the top half of production that profits are made. In its plan to aid starving Europe, the United States Government reduced the Brewery's grain quota by 30%. There is no quarrel with this plan, but the cut almost wiped out the profit margin on the small local breweries. The reduced output left little money in the business with which to meet the wage demands of labor and no board of directors could accept the responsibility for granting wage increases which would run its business into debt. Under such conditions, the Board had to know what price increase the OPA would grant and be satisfied that it was sufficient to operate at a profit after meeting all costs.

Situation Developed

"Thus there developed a situation where the brewery workers claimed (and with some logic) that they were entitled to the same 18½ cents increases recently granted workers of other industries, while the breweries were without the profit with which to meet the whole wage demand without assurances from the OPA that the price relief would be sufficient to pay that increase and still permit them to operate at a profit. Fortunately that assurance was received Monday. Had it been unduly delayed, the breweries most likely would have remained closed until assured of adequate price relief, unless the workers were willing to work and take a gamble of increased wages through price relief. The working of an economic contradiction of fluid wages and controlled prices is clearly illustrated."

"Canada clearly demonstrated that such an economic absurdity could be avoided," Mr. Small continued.

"When Canada adopted wartime price control she did it boldly and courageously. She not only showed the way to this country in bringing wages and prices under control but she is now giving the USA a lesson in decontrol.

"Our living costs have increased 33 per cent to date while the Canadian figure has been held to 20 per cent despite the fact that Canada has to import from countries less successful than she in controlling price levels.

"In Canada, wage increases have been limited largely to adjustments as between like jobs and like localities and conditional on there being no consequent increase in prices to drain the pocketbook of the consumer.

Failed To Hold Line

"This is the policy advocated by President Truman after V-J day until surrender to political expediency for the present economic absurdity whereby the government is endeavoring to impose an inflexible control of prices, while removing wage controls and actually initiating a series of substantial wage increases. It was inevitable that the price of steel, automobiles, coal and beer should follow the upward trend of wages. How much better would it have been for all concerned had the government held determinedly to fixed wages and fixed prices with the wage earner knowing what his dollar would buy.

"In announcing the Canadian control policy on January 31 last, Prime Minister King said, among other things: 'To provide jobs, there must be an inventive to permit business, large and small, to take the risks involved in expanding operations and in entering on new lines of activity — The administration of price control must — necessarily be more flexible than it was in wartime. From the beginning of reconversion the government has been determined that price control should not be allowed to restrict the expansion of peacetime production—wage and salary controls are an essential feature of the stabilization program. Inflationary pressures are such that removal of wage control is not yet feasible. The one satisfactory answer to the danger of inflation is more and more production.'

"Killing the Goose"

Mr. Small noted that in suspending certain items from the price ceiling, Prime Minister King pointed out that "the production of most of the articles suspended from price ceiling have improved to the point where material price increases are not anticipated. Expanding production, competition and self restraint on the part of the producers and distributors concerned should protect the public from serious price advances—It is most desirable that the board should concentrate its efforts on the more important commodities."

King said the Canadians "plan to protect the people of Canada from a sharp upswing in prices and living costs and from the inevitable aftermath of deflation, unemployment and distress."

In commenting on King's statement, Small declared, "the Canadians are not chasing any will-o'-the wisp. They realize that real wages are what you can buy for the money you get for your work—truly a realistic approach—while we are gradually killing the goose that laid the golden egg."

Singapore Suffers From Some Inflation

SINGAPORE (AP)—A shilling (16 cents) for a glass of water, five pence (about seven cents) extra for ice to cool a beer and five shillings ten penny (about 95 cents) for a good cinema seat are sample prices relaxation-hungry British and Allied servicemen report being charged in Singapore. Despite mention in the House of Commons, prices show no signs of descending. Servicemen say a normal week's pay will last just one day in town.

FROSTBURGER SINGS WITH NOTED CHOIR

MANTEO, Roanoke Island, N. C., June 26—George D. Truly, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Truly, 28 Hope Road, Frostburg, Md., student at Westminster Choir college in Princeton, N. J., is on Roanoke Island this summer with that school's famous choir singing in the Lost Colony for the summertime presentation of Paul Green's drama, "The Lost Colony."

The drama depicts Sir Walter Raleigh's attempt to found a settlement in the New World and is presented on the actual site where his colonists landed and built their homes.

The production, performed 223 times during the five-year period from 1937 through 1941 and witnessed by more than 400,000 persons during that time, opens its sixth season on June 30 and will run until September 2, with shows being given nightly the first week and on Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday nights thereafter.

The Lost Colony Chorus is an integral part of the production, for Green makes use of music, the dance and pantomime in telling this poignant story. The songs are for the most part old English songs of the late Sixteenth century period, with arrangements by Lamar Stringfield and Adeline McCall.

In addition to singing for the Lost Colony, the choir members will rehearse here this summer for their fall and winter concert tours. They will sing for religious services each Sunday in the open air amphitheater at historic old Fort Raleigh, and may give weekly radio broadcasts.

Maryland's Bass Season Scheduled To Open Monday

West Virginia Gets Under Way This Week; Legal Sizes Differ

Bass fishing in West Virginia streams becomes legal on Saturday at 12:01 a. m., but the season does not open in Maryland and Pennsylvania until next Monday morning.

West Virginia's season runs from June 29 through November 30 while Maryland and West Virginia open seasons begin July 1 and close on November 30.

Joseph A. Minke, regional warden for Garrett, Allegany and Washington counties, reports there are no restrictions on the hours for bass fishing. In Maryland the creel limit is 10 a day and the minimum length is 10 inches.

Minimum Lengths Differ

Bill Woodward, of Bedford, Pennsylvania game protector, says the creel limit in the Keystone State is six per day and the minimum size is nine inches or one inch less than the legal catch in Maryland.

West Virginia sets the creel limit at eight per day and eighty per season while the minimum length is nine inches, the same as the Keystone state.

The season on pickerel, muskalonge, wall-eyed pike and frogs also opens Saturday in West Virginia. The season on the first three named species closes April 30, 1947, but that on frogs terminates July 5, this year.

In Maryland the open season on blue gill, sunfish, perch and pike also begins on Monday and runs until November 30, the same as the bass season.

Here Are Best Streams

The best bass fishing streams in Allegany county are Town Creek, Will's creek from Corriganville to the Pennsylvania state line, Fifteen Mile Creek in the Green Ridge section and the Battle Mixon Fishing Hole in the Oldtown section.

Deep Creek lake with a 65-mile shoreline is the No. 1 bass stream in Garrett county, according to Minke. The lake was closed to fishing in April, May and June during the bass spawning season. Last season several bass were hooked in Deep Creek weighing six pounds. 480 brood bass were stocked in the lake this spring.

The best bass fishing in nearby Pennsylvania will be in the Juniata river, which flows through Bedford, and Lakes Koon and Gordon, the source of Cumberland's water supply.

Everybody Is Trying To Get into the Act Of Buying Pirates

PITTSBURGH, June 26. (AP)—The most fun at no expense in sports these days is digging up prospective purchasers for the last-place Pittsburgh Pirates—strictly a mass participation show with everybody now in the act.

Meanwhile, the guys who hold the franchise deftly bat aside the rumors—including one in which a Broadway columnist gleefully plumped for the Pasquel brothers as possible new owners.

Commenting on this latest in a flood of "hot tips," a Pirate management spokesman declared wearily:

"That does it—that puts everybody in the act, except the owners."

President William E. Benswanger still stuck to his declaration that while the club had "about ten inquiries" there wasn't a single "bonafide offer" in the lot. By a "bonafide offer," Benswanger presumably means a man who backs his question with cabbage.

Eckhart Tops Harris's In Extra Inning, 4-3

FROSTBURG, June 26 — Mike Davis's single scoring Johnny Bolt broke a 3-3 deadlock and gave Eckhart a 4 to 3 decision over Harris's Restaurant in an extra inning Frostburg Softball League contest today at Eckhart.

The defeat narrowed the lead of Harris's pace-setters to one full game over Tony's, present runners-up. It was Eckhart's fourth win in eight starts.

Eckhart took a 2-1 lead in the fifth when Delaney tripled and Irons hit for the circuit. Harris's tied the score at 3-3 with a two-run rally in the seventh. Bill Edwards's fielding highlighted the game. Score:

Boston Braves Return Wallace to Hoosiers

BOSTON, June 26. (AP)—The Boston Braves tonight returned Jim Wallace, 24-year-old lefthanded pitcher, on option to the Indianapolis American Association club.

Wallace, regarded as the best of the Boston southpaws in the preseason training camp, was used mainly in relief roles, winning two and losing two this season.

BUCS RETURN TO CELLAR

NEW YORK, June 26 (AP) — The New York Giants again exchanged place with Pittsburgh today, the Polo Grounders vacating the National league cellar for seventh place when they defeated the Pirates 4-0.

Dave Koslo hurled the shutout for the Ottmen, limiting the Pirates to five hits for his sixth triumph.

The Giants began the scoring against Rookie Edson Bahr in the second inning when Jack Graham cracked his fourth home run into the upper rightfield stands. In the next frame, Bobby Blattner walked, raced to third on Will Marshall's single and scored on Buddy Kerr's long fly. Box:

The loss, witnessed by a ladies' day crowd of 25,616—including 15,624 paid—was the seventh in the Phils' last twenty-five games. It kept them from climbing to the top of the National League second division as the league-leading Brooklyn Dodgers defeated the fifth place Cincinnati Reds, 4 to 2.

CARDS TAMES CUBS

BOSTON, June 26. (AP)—Keeping twelve hits, including a pair of two-baggers, well scattered, the veteran Mort Cooper, out-lasted four Chicago pitchers today while hurling the Boston Braves to an 11-2 victory for the odd game of their three-game series.

The Cubs scored their pair of tallies in the fourth inning, before the Tribesmen were able to give Cooper a run. Moundsville Pro Cops Golf Title

Rut Coffey Annexes West Virginia Open with Score of 278

LOGAN, W. Va., June 26. (AP)—Rut Coffey, new to the West Virginia golfing scene, blasted two strokes off par in a final round today and won the fourteenth annual state open championship by a substantial margin of ten strokes.

Coffey, 39-year-old Moundsville Country Club pro and veteran of 31 months in the navy, won the title and a $250 first prize with a score of 278 for the 72 holes of strokes play.

Never seriously in trouble, Coffey showed he was better than a par shooter on the tricky nine-hole country club course by coming home in a rainstorm on the final 36 holes with a card reading 141-36-33-35-33—278.

Roy Blizzard, 36-year-old Charleston amateur, was runner-up. Blizzard stuck with a cool game while Pete Byers, White Sulphur Springs pro and threat to Coffey for 36 holes, blew himself to a four over par 74 on the final round.

The Charleston amateur came in with 144-36-35-37-36—288. The runner-up slot and amateur rating won Blizzard, a chemical company employe and father of five children, a $200 complete golfing outfit.

Half Milers Will Continue "Daily Double" Betting

White Gets Applications for 75 Stalls; Stevens Plans Changes

Cumberland and Hagerstown have decided to retain the "daily double" form of wagering during their ten-day race meetings during the month of August, it was announced yesterday by Clifton W. White, president and general manager of the Cumberland Fair Association.

"There has been a move to eliminate the "double" in which the racing fans try to pick the winner of the first and second races each day," White said, "but no changes are contemplated in this form of wagering this season at either Hagerstown or Cumberland."

"The 'daily double' is popular here and at most other half milers and we're in favor of retaining it."

Horsemen Apply for Stalls

White stated that applications for stall room have been flowing in at a lively rate in the past ten days and he estimated that he now has on file requests for approximately 75 stalls for thoroughbreds for the meeting which gets underway almost two months from now. About 380 horses can be accommodated in the barns at Fairgo.

Among the early applicants is C. P. Sowers, outstanding trainer, whose horses were campaigned at Randall Park, Cleveland, Ohio, and will run in New Jersey before coming to Cumberland.

Stevens Plans Changes

Representatives of the Harry M. Stevens Company, New York caterers, visited Fairgo several days ago and are contemplating changes in the concession set-up before the race meeting opens on Tuesday, August 20. The closing date of the session here is Saturday, August 31. Hagerstown precedes Cumberland's meeting, opening August 6 and closing August 17.

William Shewbridge, Cumberland's new racing secretary is now acting as steward at the new Monmouth Park track in Oceanport, N. J., where Edward J. Brennan, former Fairgo secretary, is in charge.

The Ridgeley Legion won at Fort Ashby by the score of 4-1. Diehl limited the home team to three hits while Murrell, Carr and Nestor gathered six of Ridgeley's nine safeties. R. Wagoner belted a homer and single to account for two of Fort Ashby's three blows. The scores:

PATTERSON CREEK	000 001 0—1 5 7
SHORT GAP	230 304 x—12 10 3

Sisk and Anderson, J. Watson and Iser.

"A" Shift Spinning Wins Tenth Straight

Chasing seven runs over the platter in the opening inning, "A" Shift Spinning extended its winning streak to ten games yesterday by defeating Bobbin Stores to the tune of 8-3 in a Celanese Softball League game on Celanese field.

Hardinger smashed a home run. Athey and Folk had two hits each and G. Weltman turned in his fifth league pitching triumph. Fiorita banged out three hits for the losers. The score:

Legion and Queen City Will Do Battle Today

Fort Cumberland Post No. 13, American Legion, heading the circuit with seven wins and one defeat, will cross bats with Charley Doyle's Queen City Brewers in a City Baseball League game today at 5:30 o'clock at Community Park.

The Brewers have won five and lost two and a victory today would put them one-half game in the rear of the leaders.

At Stitcher's field, the Loyal Order of Moose, defeated in five straight games, is scheduled to play host to Fulton Myers Post, American Legion, which has a record of two wins and four losses.

Mauriello Mentioned As Louis's Next Foe

NEW YORK, June 26 (AP) — Promoter Mike Jacobs and Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis met today and discussed a September title bout but neither Tami Mauriello, nor his manager, Lefty Remini, could be located. Mauriello has been suggested as Louis's foe in a fall bout.

Conferences on Monday and Tuesday brought no results when Louis failed to appear. He spent both days on the golf course.

Roby Keeps Lacy's on Top
Wins Eleven and Loses One
Scalettas Having Big Year
Penalty Displeases Umpires

By C. V. BURNS

Much credit for the success of Lacy Cifala's Delicatets in the first half championship race of the City Softball League is due Jim Roby, recently of Uncle Sam's navy and a former Fort Hill high school basketball player, who has done the bulk of the pitching for the team which now holds first place in the eight-club circuit.

Our records show that Lacy's team has won fourteen and lost six and to Jim Roby goes the credit for winning eleven of these contests. Roby started off the campaign by copping his first six starts. He suffered his lone defeat on May 29 when the American Legion beat him, 7-3. Since that setback he has bagged five straight decisions.

Roby has turned back every team in the league at least once and he holds two decisions each over the Maccabees, American Legion, Shamrocks and Keegan's Jupers. Scores of the games he won were:

Maccabees 14-3 and 7-5; American Legion, 13-6 and 9-1; Shamrocks, 3-2 and 8-7; Keegan's Jupers, 8-2 and 12-0; VFW, 25-1; East Side, 4-1 and Williams Street, 9-3.

Two Lacy victories are credited to Jim Wright while another was via the forfeit route.

Other notable pitching achievements of the current softball season include the work of the Scaletta brothers — Anthony "Bud," who does the elbowing for Jim Browning's Knights of Columbus in the Rocking Chair League, and Gene, the ace of East Side in the City League.

The combined record of the Scaletta brothers is twelve wins against a single defeat.

The Caseys have bagged nine straight and "Bud" is given credit for winning six of them. He has mastered the Moose twice, 4-2 and 8-2, the Jaycees 10-4, Elks 8-4, Woodmen 5-3 and the Outdoor Club 3-2. Joe Neubiser was on the mound when the undefeated Knights won their three other games.

Gene has turned back the VFW three times, 10-6, 2-1 and 9-8; the Shamrocks 11-9 and 3-2, and Lacy's, 5-4. His only setback was suffered at the hands of the Delicatets and Roby was his opponent that day. The score was 4-1. Gene threw his arm out of place in his losing start against Lacy's on June 5 and didn't pitch again until June 17. Four days later he squared accounts with the league leaders.

Charging that the league had not backed them up in a dispute with the manager of the Louisville Colonels, Forrest "Frosty" Peters and Milton Steegrafe have resigned from the umpiring staff of the American Association.

Peters said Nemo Loebold, Louisville manager, had struck him between games of a doubleheader June 16, and that the penalty assessed against Liebold was $100 fine and five-day suspension. Peters contends that the "penalty for assaulting an umpire is a minimum suspension of ninety days."

Back in the Middle Atlantic League days a Cumberland player punched an umpire during a game in Fairmont, W. Va., and the penalty for that player was a ninety-day suspension. There have been several other instances in organized baseball where players have been set down for ninety days for striking an arbiter.

Peters and Steengrafe have taken their case to President W. G. Bramham of the Association of Minor Leagues because they felt he alone was competent to act in the dispute.

We've always contended that the ninety-day suspension is good medicine and should apply to all baseball leagues.

Villanova and Florida will meet under the lights Nov. 16 at Gainesville, Fla., for the fourth time. They played in 1940, 1941 and 1942, the Wildcats winning all three games.

Tigers Trim Bosox, 16-2 Then Lose 9-3 Nightcap

Greenberg and Williams Hit Homers To Remain Tied at 19 Each

DETROIT, June 26 (AP) — The scoring came in big bunches here today as the Detroit Tigers chased across fifteen runs in the first two innings to hand the Boston Red Sox their worst defeat of the season 16 to 2 in the first half of a twin bill and Boston came roaring back with a seven-run eighth inning to grab the nightcap 9 to 3 and gain an even split.

Ted Williams and Hank Greenberg, running a neck and neck race for the home run leadership, each belted a homer in each game to remain deadlocked at nineteen each.

Detroit scored seven runs off three Boston pitchers in the opening inning of the first game and powered across eight more runs in the second as Greenberg and Hal Newhouser knocked in five with a home run each.

Virgil (Fire) Trucks, Detroit fastballer, had a 3-2 lead going into the eighth inning of the nightcap when the Red Sox exploded six hits for seven runs to give Dave (Boo) Ferriss his eleventh win after three straight defeats. Box:

CHANDLER NOTCHES NO. 11

CLEVELAND, June 26 (AP) — The New York Yankees wound up a successful western invasion today by defeating the Cleveland Indians 8-4 in the rubber game of the three-game series. The victory gave the Yankees a record of eight out of 12 for the trip and reduced the lead of the Boston Red Sox to seven games.

Spud Chandler was the Yankee winning pitcher, the ace right-hander spacing eight hits for his 11th triumph. Heavy hitting by Joe Gordon and Charlie Keller made it easy for the former Georgia football star. Box:

NATS WIN IN 16TH

CHICAGO, June 26—(AP)— The Washington Senators defeated the Chicago White Sox, 4 to 3 today in sixteen innings after Bob Kennedy fumbled Stan Spence's grounder permitting Sid Hudson to score from third.

The Senators led 3-2 going into the eighth, but the Sox scored to tie the count. In the sixteenth, Hudson singled and went to third on Buddy Lewis's single, then scored when Kennedy bobbled Spence's grounder.

Hudson's victory was his fifth in

West Virginia Gets Under Way This Week; Legal Sizes Differ

Bass fishing in West Virginia streams becomes legal on Saturday at 12:01 a. m., but the season does not open in Maryland and Pennsylvania until next Monday morning.

West Virginia's season runs from June 29 through November 30 while Maryland and West Virginia open seasons begin July 1 and close on November 30.

Joseph A. Minke, regional warden for Garrett, Allegany and Washington counties, reports there are no restrictions on the hours for bass fishing. In Maryland the creel limit is 10 a day and the minimum length is 10 inches.

Minimum Lengths Differ

Bill Woodward, of Bedford, Pennsylvania game protector, says the creel limit in the Keystone State is six per day and the minimum size is nine inches or one inch less than the legal catch in Maryland.

West Virginia sets the creel limit at eight per day and eighty per season while the minimum length is nine inches, the same as the Keystone state.

The season on pickerel, muskalonge, wall-eyed pike and frogs also opens Saturday in West Virginia. The season on the first three named species closes April 30, 1947, but that on frogs terminates July 5, this year.

In Maryland the open season on blue gill, sunfish, perch and pike also begins on Monday and runs until November 30, the same as the bass season.

Here Are Best Streams

The best bass fishing streams in Allegany county are Town Creek, Will's creek from Corriganville to the Pennsylvania state line, Fifteen Mile Creek in the Green Ridge section and the Battle Mixon Fishing Hole in the Oldtown section.

Deep Creek lake with a 65-mile shoreline is the No. 1 bass stream in Garrett county, according to Minke. The lake was closed to fishing in April, May and June during the bass spawning season. Last season several bass were hooked in Deep Creek weighing six pounds. 480 brood bass were stocked in the lake this spring.

The best bass fishing in nearby Pennsylvania will be in the Juniata river, which flows through Bedford, and Lakes Koon and Gordon, the source of Cumberland's water supply.

Everybody Is Trying To Get into the Act Of Buying Pirates

PITTSBURGH, June 26. (AP)—The most fun at no expense in sports these days is digging up prospective purchasers for the last-place Pittsburgh Pirates—strictly a mass participation show with everybody row in the act.

Meanwhile, the guys who hold the franchise deftly bat aside the rumors—including one in which a Broadway columnist gleefully plumped for the Pasquel brothers as possible new owners.

Commenting on this latest in a flood of "hot tips," a Pirate management spokesman declared wearily:

"That does it—that puts everybody in the act, except the owners."

President William E. Benswanger still stuck to his declaration that while the club had "about ten inquiries" there wasn't a single "bona-fide offer" in the lot. By a "bona-fide offer," Benswanger presumably means a man who backs his question with cabbage.

Eckhart Tops Harris's In Extra Inning, 4-3

FROSTBURG, June 26 — Mike Davis's single scoring Johnny Bolt broke a 3-3 deadlock and gave Eckhart a 4 to 3 decision over Harris's Restaurant in an extra inning Frostburg Softball League contest today at Eckhart.

The defeat narrowed the lead of Harris's pace-setters to one full game over Tony's, present runners-up. It was Eckhart's fourth win in eight starts.

Eckhart took a 2-1 lead in the fifth when Delaney tripled and Irons hit for the circuit. Harris's tied the score at 3-3 with a two-run rally in the seventh. Bill Edwards's fielding highlighted the game. Score:

Boston Braves Return Wallace to Hoosiers

BOSTON, June 26. (AP)—The Boston Braves tonight returned Jim Wallace, 24-year-old lefthanded pitcher, on option to the Indianapolis American Association club.

Wallace, regarded as the best of the Boston southpaws in the preseason training camp, was used mainly in relief roles, winning two and losing two this season.

NEW YORK, June 26 (AP) — The New York Giants again exchanged place with Pittsburgh today, the Polo Grounders vacating the National league cellar for seventh place when they defeated the Pirates 4-0.

Dave Koslo hurled the shutout for the Ottmen, limiting the Pirates to five hits for his sixth triumph.

The Giants began the scoring against Rookie Edson Bahr in the second inning when Jack Graham cracked his fourth home run into the upper rightfield stands. In the next frame, Bobby Blattner walked, raced to third on Will Marshall's single and scored on Buddy Kerr's long fly. Box:

COOPER TAMES CUBS

BOSTON, June 26. (AP)—Keeping twelve hits, including a pair of two-baggers, well scattered, the veteran Mort Cooper, out-lasted four Chicago pitchers today while hurling the Boston Braves to an 11-2 victory for the odd game of their three-game series.

The Cubs scored their pair of tallies in the fourth inning, before the Tribesmen were able to give Cooper a run. Moundsville Pro Cops Golf Title

Rut Coffey Annexes West Virginia Open with Score of 278

LOGAN, W. Va., June 26. (AP)—Rut Coffey, new to the West Virginia golfing scene, blasted two strokes off par in a final round today and won the fourteenth annual state open championship by a substantial margin of ten strokes.

Coffey, 39-year-old Moundsville Country Club pro and veteran of 31 months in the navy, won the title and a $250 first prize with a score of 278 for the 72 holes of strokes play.

Never seriously in trouble, Coffey showed he was better than a par shooter on the tricky nine-hole country club course by coming home in a rainstorm on the final 36 holes with a card reading 141-36-33-35-33—278.

Roy Blizzard, 36-year-old Charleston amateur, was runner-up. Blizzard stuck with a cool game while Pete Byers, White Sulphur Springs pro and threat to Coffey for 36 holes, blew himself to a four over par 74 on the final round.

The Charleston amateur came in with 144-36-35-37-36—288. The runner-up slot and amateur rating won Blizzard, a chemical company employe and father of five children, a $200 complete golfing outfit.

Half Milers Will Continue "Daily Double" Betting

White Gets Applications for 75 Stalls; Stevens Plans Changes

Cumberland and Hagerstown have decided to retain the "daily double" form of wagering during their ten-day race meetings during the month of August, it was announced yesterday by Clifton W. White, president and general manager of the Cumberland Fair Association.

"There has been a move to eliminate the "double" in which the racing fans try to pick the winner of the first and second races each day," White said, "but no changes are contemplated in this form of wagering this season at either Hagerstown or Cumberland."

"The 'daily double' is popular here and at most other half milers and we're in favor of retaining it."

Horsemen Apply for Stalls

White stated that applications for stall room have been flowing in at a lively rate in the past ten days and he estimated that he now has on file requests for approximately 75 stalls for thoroughbreds for the meeting which gets underway almost two months from now. About 380 horses can be accommodated in the barns at Fairgo.

Among the early applicants is C. P. Sowers, outstanding trainer, whose horses were campaigned at Randall Park, Cleveland, Ohio, and will run in New Jersey before coming to Cumberland.

Stevens Plans Changes

Representatives of the Harry M. Stevens Company, New York caterers, visited Fairgo several days ago and are contemplating changes in the concession set-up before the race meeting opens on Tuesday, August 20. The closing date of the session here is Saturday, August 31. Hagerstown precedes Cumberland's meeting, opening August 6 and closing August 17.

William Shewbridge, Cumberland's new racing secretary is now acting as steward at the new Monmouth Park, track in Oceanport, N. J., where Edward J. Brennan, former Fairgo secretary, is in charge.

Legion and Queen City Will Do Battle Today

Fort Cumberland Post No. 13, American Legion, heading the circuit with seven wins and one defeat, will cross bats with Charley Doyle's Queen City Brewers in a City Baseball League game today at 5:30 o'clock at Community Park.

The Brewers have won five and lost two and a victory today would put them one-half game in the rear of the leaders.

At Stitcher's field, the Loyal Order of Moose, defeated in five straight games, is scheduled to play host to Fulton Myers Post, American Legion, which has a record of two wins and four losses.

Mauriello Mentioned As Louis's Next Foe

NEW YORK, June 26 (AP) — Promoter Mike Jacobs and Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis met today and discussed a September title bout but neither Tami Mauriello, nor his manager, Lefty Remini, could be located. Mauriello has been suggested as Louis's foe in a fall bout.

Conferences on Monday and Tuesday brought no results when Louis failed to appear. He spent both days on the golf course.

Wins Eleven and Loses One
Scalettas Having Big Year

By C. V. BURNS

Much credit for the success of Lacy Cifala's Delicatets in the first half championship race of the City Softball League is due Jim Roby, recently of Uncle Sam's navy and a former Fort Hill high school basketball player, who has done the bulk of the pitching for the team which now holds first place in the eight-club circuit.

Our records show that Lacy's team has won fourteen and lost six and to Jim Roby goes the credit for winning eleven of these contests. Roby started off the campaign by copping his first six starts. He suffered his lone defeat on May 29 when the American Legion beat him, 7-3. Since that setback he has bagged five straight decisions.

Roby has turned back every team in the league at least once and he holds two decisions each over the Maccabees, American Legion, Shamrocks and Keegan's Jupers. Scores of the games he won were:

Maccabees 14-3 and 7-5; American Legion, 13-6 and 9-1; Shamrocks, 3-2 and 8-7; Keegan's Jupers, 8-2 and 12-0; VFW, 25-1; East Side, 4-1 and Williams Street, 9-3.

Two Lacy victories are credited to Jim Wright while another was via the forfeit route.

Other notable pitching achievements of the current softball season include the work of the Scaletta brothers — Anthony "Bud." who does the elbowing for Jim Browning's Knights of Columbus in the Rocking Chair League, and Gene, the ace of East Side in the City League.

The combined record of the Scaletta brothers is twelve wins against a single defeat.

The Caseys have bagged nine straight and "Bud" is given credit for winning six of them. He has mastered the Moose twice, 4-2 and 8-2, the Jaycees 10-4, Elks 8-4, Woodmen 5-3 and the Outdoor Club 3-2. Joe Neubiser was on the mound when the undefeated Knights won their three other games.

Gene has turned back the VFW three times, 10-6, 2-1 and 9-8; the Shamrocks 11-9 and 3-2, and Lacy's, 5-4. His only setback was suffered at the hands of the Delicatets and Roby was his opponent that day. The score was 4-1. Gene threw his arm out of place in his losing start against Lacy's on June 5 and didn't pitch again until June 17. Four days later he squared accounts with the league leaders.

Charging that the league had not backed them up in a dispute with the manager of the Louisville Colonels, Forrest "Frosty" Peters and Milton Steegrafe have resigned from the umpiring staff of the American Association.

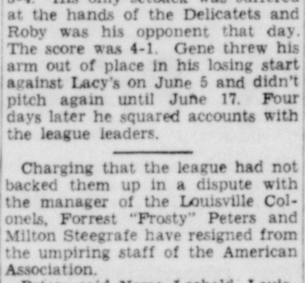

Peters said Nemo Loebold, Louisville manager, had struck him between games of a doubleheader June 16, and that the penalty assessed against Liebold was $100 fine and five-day suspension. Peters contends that the "penalty for assaulting an umpire is a minimum suspension of ninety days."

Back in the Middle Atlantic League days a Cumberland player punched an umpire during a game in Fairmont, W. Va., and the penalty for that player was a ninety-day suspension. There have been several other instances in organized baseball where players have been set down for ninety days for striking an arbiter.

Peters and Steengrafe have taken their case to President W. G. Bramham of the Association of Minor Leagues because they felt he alone was competent to act in the dispute.

We've always contended that the ninety-day suspension is good medicine and should apply to all baseball leagues.

Villanova and Florida will meet under the lights Nov. 16 at Gainesville, Fla., for the fourth time. They played in 1940, 1941 and 1942, the Wildcats winning all three games.

Tigers Trim Bosox, 16-2 Then Lose 9-3 Nightcap

Greenberg and Williams Hit Homers To Remain Tied at 19 Each

DETROIT, June 26 (AP) — The scoring came in big bunches here today as the Detroit Tigers chased across fifteen runs in the first two innings to hand the Boston Red Sox their worst defeat of the season 16 to 2 in the first half of a twin bill and Boston came roaring back with a seven-run eighth inning to grab the nightcap 9 to 3 and gain an even split.

Ted Williams and Hank Greenberg, running a neck and neck race for the home run leadership, each belted a homer in each game to remain deadlocked at nineteen each.

Detroit scored seven runs off three Boston pitchers in the opening inning of the first game and powered across eight more runs in the second as Greenberg and Hal Newhouser knocked in five with a home run each.

Virgil (Fire) Trucks, Detroit fastballer, had a 3-2 lead going into the eighth inning of the nightcap when the Red Sox exploded six hits for seven runs to give Dave (Boo) Ferriss his eleventh win after three straight defeats. Box:

CHANDLER NOTCHES NO. 11

CLEVELAND, June 26 (AP) — The New York Yankees wound up a successful western invasion today by defeating the Cleveland Indians 8-4 in the rubber game of the three-game series. The victory gave the Yankees a record of eight out of 12 for the trip and reduced the lead of the Boston Red Sox to seven games.

Spud Chandler was the Yankee winning pitcher, the ace right-hander spacing eight hits for his 11th triumph. Heavy hitting by Joe Gordon and Charlie Keller made it easy for the former Georgia football star. Box:

Witch Sir, 52-1 Shot, Scores Over Armed in $35,000 Race

Long Shot Pays $106.60 in Winning Equipoise Mile at Arlington; 20,000 See Upset

CHICAGO, June 26—(AP)—A sweltering crowd of 20,000 saw Armed, handicap champion of the American turf and a 3 to 5 favorite, go down to crushing defeat in the $35,000 Equipoise Mile at Arlington Park today.

Armed's conqueror was Witch Sir, at odds of 52 to 1, longest price in a twelve horse field. Witch Sir, owned by Louis Schlosser, a Chicago baker, won by three quarters of a length, with Old Kentuck second, and Armed, third, a head back.

Witch Sir, which had only two allowance races in nine previous starts this season, returned $106.60 for a $2 win ticket, $30.60 to place and $7.20 to show. Old Kentuck, coupled with Daily Trouble and the 9-year-old Equifox, winners of last year's two divisions of the Equipoise mile, returned $6.40 and $3.20. Armed, on which $76,534 was wagered to win and place, paid $2.60 to show.

The winner's time was 1:37 1-5 compared with the track record and world's mark of 1:34 2-5 established at Arlington in 1932.

Armed, weighed down with 132 pounds against 110 for Witch Sir, had rolled up winnings of $174,350 this season based on eight victories, two seconds and a fourth in eleven trips to the post. He was ridden by Jockey Douglas Dodson.

The victory was worth $24,200 to owner Schlosser.

Aussie Net Aces Suffer Setbacks In British Meet

Hopman and Harper Lose Matches to French and Dutch Players

WIMBLEDON, Eng., June 26 (AP)—His blistered racket hand protected by a grey cloth glove, Jack Kramer of Los Angeles walloped E. R. Avory, 6-1, 6-1, 6-0 today, continuing the withering American advance through the third day of the Wimbledon tennis championships while the vaunted Australian title bid lost some of its steam.

The No. 2 seeded American ran into a new twist from his British opponent — a pendulum windup for his service — but the oddity was no help to Avory once the ball got into play. Kramer played leisurely from the baseline, going up to the net only twice during the last set in which he gave up only eight points. He found Avory's baseline and sidelines at will to advance to the third round.

While the Wimbledon championships, being played for the first time since 1939, advanced rapidly with all seeded players making good, the upsets began with two big league Australians.

Jack Harper, ranked No. 8 Down Under where the Davis cup rests, was eliminated in the second round by A. C. Van Swol, of Holland, a big rangy racket-wielder who rallied fast after dropping the first set, 4-6. The next two were deuced with Van Swol winning 8-6, 7-5. He took the fourth more easily, 6-3.

Th second Aussie ousted was the international veteran Harry Hopman, who at 39 still swats with the best. He let slip a two-set lead to Pierre Pellizza, of France, and went out 4-6, 4-6, 6-3, 6-4, 6-1 as Frenchmen from all parts of Wimbledon rallied to the word that the tricolor was flying high on the courts.

Meanwhile, the seeded American misses moved into the third round of the women's singles in step, each winning in straight sets. No. 3 seeded Louise Brough of Beverly Hills, Calif., trimmed Mrs. M. Landry of France, 6-2, 6-1. Louise fell on her right knee in the fifth game of the second set, skinning it lightly.

Dorothy Bundy of Santa Monica, Calif., fifth seeded, eliminated a strong British doubles player, Mrs. Betty Passingham, 6-4, 6-1, and Miami's Doris Hart, No. 7, rolled over Miss Joan Ingram of England, 6-0, 6-1. Unseeded Kay Winthrop of South Hamilton, Mass. Defeated Mrs. G. Blaisse of Holland, 2-6, 6-0, 6-1.

Niggeling Will Enter Mink-Raising Business

WASHINGTON, June 26 (AP)—John Niggeling, 40-year-old knuckleballer unconditionally released by the Washington Senators, disclosed today that he plans to finish this season with an American Association team then he will go into the mink-raising business at his home, Remsen, Iowa.

Long Shot Pays $106.60 in Winning Equipoise Mile at Arlington; 20,000 See Upset

CHICAGO, June 26—(AP)—A sweltering crowd of 20,000 saw Armed, handicap champion of the American turf and a 3 to 5 favorite, go down to crushing defeat in the $35,000 Equipoise Mile at Arlington Park today.

Armed's conqueror was Witch Sir, at odds of 52 to 1, longest price in a twelve horse field. Witch Sir, owned by Louis Schlosser, a Chicago baker, won by three quarters of a length, with Old Kentuck second, and Armed, third, a head back.

Witch Sir, which had only two allowance races in nine previous starts this season, returned $106.60 for a $2 win ticket, $30.60 to place and $7.20 to show. Old Kentuck, coupled with Daily Trouble and the 9-year-old Equifox, winners of last year's two divisions of the Equipoise mile, returned $6.40 and $3.20. Armed, on which $76,534 was wagered to win and place, paid $2.60 to show.

The winner's time was 1:37 1-5 compared with the track record and world's mark of 1:34 2-5 established at Arlington in 1932.

Armed, weighed down with 132 pounds against 110 for Witch Sir, had rolled up winnings of $174,350 this season based on eight victories, two seconds and a fourth in eleven trips to the post. He was ridden by Jockey Douglas Dodson.

Witch Sir's triumph was an occasion for his pilot, Bobby Campbell, who celebrated his twentieth birthday with his ride on the big chestnut 4-year-old son of Sir Damionepi Witch.

The victory was worth $24,200 to owner Schlosser.

Aussie Net Aces Suffer Setbacks In British Meet

Hopman and Harper Lose Matches to French and Dutch Players

WIMBLEDON, Eng., June 26 (AP)—His blistered racket hand protected by a grey cloth glove, Jack Kramer of Los Angeles walloped E. R. Avory, 6-1, 6-1, 6-0 today, continuing the withering American advance through the third day of the Wimbledon tennis championships while the vaunted Australian title bid lost some of its steam.

The No. 2 seeded American ran into a new twist from his British opponent — a pendulum windup for his service — but the oddity was no help to Avory once the ball got into play. Kramer played leisurely from the baseline, going up to the net only twice during the last set in which he gave up only eight points. He found Avory's baseline and sidelines at will to advance to the third round.

While the Wimbledon championships, being played for the first time since 1939, advanced rapidly with all seeded players making good, the upsets began with two big league Australians.

Jack Harper, ranked No. 8 Down Under where the Davis cup rests, was eliminated in the second round by A. C. Van Swol, of Holland, a big rangy racket-wielder who rallied fast after dropping the first set, 4-6. The next two were deuced with Van Swol winning 8-6, 7-5. He took the fourth more easily, 6-3.

Th second Aussie ousted was the international veteran Harry Hopman, who at 39 still swats with the best. He let slip a two-set lead to Pierre Pellizza, of France, and went out 4-6, 4-6, 6-3, 6-4, 6-1 as Frenchmen from all parts of Wimbledon rallied to the word that the tricolor was flying high on the courts.

Meanwhile, the seeded American misses moved into the third round of the women's singles in step, each winning in straight sets. No. 3 seeded Louise Brough of Beverly Hills, Calif., trimmed Mrs. M. Landry of France, 6-2, 6-1. Louise fell on her right knee in the fifth game of the second set, skinning it lightly.

Dorothy Bundy of Santa Monica, Calif., fifth seeded, eliminated a strong British doubles player, Mrs. Betty Passingham, 6-4, 6-1, and Miami's Doris Hart, No. 7, rolled over Miss Joan Ingram of England, 6-0, 6-1. Unseeded Kay Winthrop of South Hamilton, Mass. Defeated Mrs. G. Blaisse of Holland, 2-6, 6-0, 6-1.

Colonial Charm

This bowknot-beauty square looks as if it's fagoted, but it's simplest crochet. Combines colonial charm with a very modern appeal.

So sturdy it's especially good for clothes and bedspreads . . . seven-inch square in No. 30 cotton. Pattern 960 has directions for square.

Send twenty-five cents in coins for this pattern to The Cumberland News, 39 Needlecraft Department, 82 Eighth avenue, New York 11, N. Y. Print plainly pattern number, your name, address and zone.

Fifteen cents more brings you our newest needlework catalog—the 1946 edition—112 illustrations of designs for crochet, knitting, quilts, embroidery, toys, handicraft—a free pattern for cuddle toys printed right in the catalog.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our dear son and brother, Samuel D. Maxey, Jr., who passed away five years ago, June 26, 1941.

Deep in our hearts lies a picture
Of a boy just in manhood gone to rest,
In our memory we shall keep it,
And those who loved him best.
Some may think we are not lonely,
When at time they see us smile,
But sweet thoughts will ever linger
To the grave where where they laid him for awhile.

Sadly missed by his MOTHER, FATHER, SISTER & BROTHERS.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our dear son and brother, Samuel D. Maxey, Jr., who passed away five years ago, June 26, 1941.

Deep in our hearts lies a picture
Of a boy just in manhood gone to rest,
In our memory we shall keep it,
And those who loved him best.
Some may think we are not lonely,
When at time they see us smile,
But sweet thoughts will ever linger
To the grave where where they laid him for awhile.

MOTHER, FATHER, SISTER & BROTHERS.

Government Wage, Price Policy Rapped by Small

By JAMES B. CRAIG

Fred T. Small, who has been engaged in making a somewhat comprehensive study of the government's fluid wage and controlled price policy in its relation to Cumberland area citizens, commented yesterday there is no better example of the difficulties created by such a policy, for labor and industry alike, than in the recent brewery strike in Cumberland, now happily settled.

Mr. Small, who is Allegany county's largest employer in his capacity as plant manager of the Amcelle plant of the Celanese Corporation of America, first became interested in this subject when the administration surrendered what he regarded as a basically sound preconceived postwar plan to protect the consumer for the sake of "political expediency." His first published statement on the matter attracted considerable notice, both locally and elsewhere, and his suggestions were commented on editorially by the New York Times.

Since making his original comments, released after the signing of the first Celanese contract after V-J Day, Mr. Small has delved into the problem in more detail and has made a careful study of the Canadian postwar adjustment plan, which he heartily recommends as a common sense solution of the problem to the authorities in Washington. His remarks published here today represent a continuation of his original statement on the subject of current government practices.

Labor Given Free Rein

"Following the elimination of the War Labor Board, labor was given almost complete freedom in the matter of wage increases, while industry was restricted by a controlled price level for its products", Mr. Small said. "Both were without recourse to any federal agency for the settlement of disputes, such as had determined their relationship under the WLB during the critical war period.

"As was natural, labor proceeded to make the most of its opportunity to force up wages, while industry was compelled to act cautiously in meeting wage demands.

"The situation was intensified when the United States Government's so-called fact finding boards recommended an increase of approximately 18½c an hour for the railroads, steel, automobile and coal industries. This set a national pattern and was immediately used by the various unions as the basis of their wage demands, regardless as to whether or not the particular industry could stand it.

"These factors made it difficult to find a common ground for collective bargaining, particularly where the money was not in the business.

Third Cavalry Unit Spends Night Here

Troop A, Third Cavalry, comprising 112 men in 30 jeeps, 11 Armored cars, three trucks and one wrecker, will leave Cumberland this morning at 0600 hours en route to Parkersburg, W. Va., after spending the night at the state armory.

The unit commanded by Lt. Edward S. Heatherly, formerly of the 11th Cavalry, arrived in Cumberland yesterday at 1240 hours from Fort George G. Meade where the outfit is presently stationed.

While the lustre of the exploits of the Third cavalry with the late General George Patton in Europe are still undimmed, there are only two veterans of those exploits now serving with the troop. They are Sgt. John Tobin and Sgt. Tom Watkins who were with Troop A when the Third cavalry was spearheading Patton's drive across Europe.

Lt. Heatherly recalled last night that the Third cavalry is noted, among other things, for the fact that it fought continuously for 246 days during one phase of the European campaign without relief.

At present, the unit is engaged in training new men and in conducting firing problems in connection with mechanized units. The unit will be in Parkersburg for a parade on June 29 after which it will return to Fort Meade.

J. E. Wetzel Resigns As Chairman of Board Of Zoning Appeals

J. E. Wetzel, defeated candidate for the Republican nomination for county commissioner, has submitted his resignation as chairman of the board of zoning appeals, in a letter to Mayor Thomas S. Post.

Wetzel said that he is resigning, effective immediately, in agreement "with my definite statement during the recent county campaign." Mayor Post said yesterday he will submit the name of a successor soon.

Wetzel succeeded Thomas Lohr Richards as chairman of the three-man board when the latter resigned July 1 with the other members of the original board, George H. Tederick and Bruce D. Smith. All resigned on the ground that the work took too much of their time. The board was established by city ordinance November 27, 1944.

The first meeting of the present board was held last August 13, after the new members were named by Mayor Post. The remaining two members are Raymond G. Messmer and Joseph R. Manthely.

Wetzel operates a service station at the corner of Park and Union streets.

Contract Delay Given as Cause Of Store Strike

Union Official Says Manager Refuses To Begin Negotiations

Pickets paced yesterday before the Wolfe furniture store and the Pepsi-Cola bottling works as a result of contract disputes between the companies and Local 453, Teamsters and Chauffeurs Union.

C. E. Stutzman, business manager, said five members of the Teamsters union and two clerks affiliated with local 654, Retail Clerks Union, struck yesterday morning after the management of the local furniture store refused to enter into contract negotiations.

Clayton S. Porscher, store manager, said three employes failed to report for work but added, "I know nothing of a labor dispute and nothing of efforts to have the company negotiate with the union".

Must Contact Altoona

Stutzman said late yesterday afternoon that Porscher notified him in a letter that the union would have to contact the Altoona, Pa., home office about any contract. The union has been unable to do so, Stutzman said.

There was no new developments at the Pepsi-Cola plant which was struck Monday after, union officials said, one driver was told he would be laid off.

Stutzman said that the union yesterday presented a contract to the City Ice and Fuel Company for about 25 workers who are affiliated with the Teamsters union here and the Stationery Engineers union in Baltimore. The plant furnishes ice for the B. and O. railroad here.

Report Deadlocks

Negotiations between Cumberland and Westernport bakeries were still deadlocked yesterday over a wage dispute. The AFL union representing the 75 workers dropped its original wage demand from 30 to 15 cents an hour last Saturday and the companies countered with an offer of a 10 cent wage boost. Saturday has been set as a strike deadline by the union.

A company reported last evening there was "nothing new" to report concerning the strike of CIO workers at the Cumberland Macaroni Company which began early this month.

Officers Asked To Enforce Maryland Fireworks Law

Enforcement of the state law pertaining to fireworks is being urged over the Fourth of July by the Insurance Department of Maryland in an appeal addressed to all police departements, sheriffs and state's attorneys.

According to Insurance Commissioner Lawrence E. Ensor, it is a distinct violation of the laws of the state to set off fireworks or fireworks displays without first having obtained the approval of the Insurance department. The law requires this approval and the filing of bond with the Insurance department to protect anyone who might be injured.

Ensor said the number of applications for permits to the department this year have increased, there being a tendency to celebrate the fourth on a more extensive scale this year. Anyone putting on such a display without a permit will be procesuted by the department, Ensor said.

Navy Approaches Enlistment Quota, Smith Reports

The navy is rapidly approaching its quota of enlisted personnel and enlistment policies are expected to tighten up soon, Chief Boatswain's Mate Bradford Smith, local recruiter, said yesterday. At the present time, men aged 17 to 30 are permitted to enlist for two years, but Smith reminded that in 1940 the minimum term of enlistment was six years for men 18 and over. How long the present policy will last is not known.

Smith added that his office will be open on Sunday until 5 p. m to give men a chance to enlist before July 1 and thus be eligible for the family allowance allotment for the current term of enlistment.

Seven men enlisted yesterday. They include Charles J. Mercer, Piedmont, W. Va., who served three years and two months in the army in World War II. He was enlisted in the grade of seaman first class.

Others in the group enlisted yesterday were Clyde W. Woods, son of William H. Woods, of Petersburg, W. Va., who enlisted for two years, and Bruce P. Sneathen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ellis T. Sneathen, of 35 Mullins street, who enlisted for two years. He graduated from Fort Hill High School this year.

Bottle Beer Price Cannot Be Raised Until Weekend

OPA Permits Tavern Owner Increase of One Cent a Bottle

Tavern owners who raised the price on bottle beer yesterday were advised last night by Price Control Board attaches to revert to the former price until the end of the week inasmuch as a price increase allowed wholesalers is not effective until then.

Officials of the board also pointed out that the retail price on bottle beer can be increased only one cent per bottle at that time.

Tavern owners who jump the gun on the price increase or who raise the price more than the permitted one cent on the effective date are subject to penalty, the OPA advised.

Consumers Make Inquiry

A survey yesterday disclosed that several places had hiked prices from 11 to 12 cents a bottle to a flat 15 cents, and the Price Control Board reported that although no specific complaints were made, about a dozen telephone calls were received from consumers inquiring about the correct price.

It was pointed out that tavern owners will not be required to pay more for beer until the end of the week at the earliest and that even the one-cent increase cannot be passed along to consumers before that time.

The OPA price increase on drought beer is not effective unless the glass in which it is sold is over eight ounces. All draught beer sold in glasses containing eight or less ounces must remain at 10 cents.

Amusement Tax Charge

The only additional charge for drought beer sold in the smaller glasses is the 20 per cent amusement tax in places which have entertainment such as floor shows or singing and instrumental groups.

Bottle beer prices in Allegany county were based on the price prevailing in March, 1942, and an additional cent rase was granted to cover two tax increases on beverages in recent years. Prices here have ranged from 11 to 15 cents a bottle.

Attorney Would Grant Baking Company Appeal

Walsh Lists Arguments in Letter to Rizer, Board of Zoning Appeals

In a letter submitted yesterday to Ralph L. Rizer, city engineer, and to the board of zoning appeals, William C. Walsh, attorney for the Schmidt Baking Company, Inc., said that if the board refuses the company's appeal for an occupancy permit to use alley property on Pearre avenue for building an addition to the bakery plant, the action would "result in unwarranted hardship and injustice to the company."

Application for the permit, made Tuesday by Harold A. MacMannis, manager of the company, was denied by Rizer on the ground that the alley, located at the rear of the company's plant at the corner of Frederick street and Pearre avenue, is public property and has not yet been closed.

Board To Meet July 2

MacMannis has filed an appeal from Rizer's decision to the board of zoning appeals, scheduled to hold a meeting July 2. Following a request by the company, the mayor and city council approved a recommendation June 11 to relocate the twelve-foot alley to the far side of a company-owned lot in the rear of the plant, so that an addition which the company proposes to build will become part of the present building and not be located across the alley.

In his letter, Walsh said that building of the addition and installation of machinery, at a total estimated cost of $93,000, would "substantially increase" the assessable basis of the company's property, thus benefiting other taxpayers, and that the number of employes would probably be increased. He also pointed out that construction of the addition, or extension, would provide work for local men.

The attorney added that building of the extension on the present alley property would decrease any annoyance now caused by the present bakery, since residents beyond the lot would have the relocated alley between their property and the new addition.

Ordinance Cited

Walsh cited two sections of the zoning ordinance in support of the company's appeal. One is sub-section 3 of section 9, which states that use may be extended to the remainder of a lot which was, at the time the ordinance was passed, part of a business or industrial lot or tract and then intended for such use.

The other is sub-section 7-c of section 20, which states that the board may authorize upon appeal in specific cases such variance from the terms of the ordinance as will not be contrary to the public interest where, owing to special conditions, enforcement of the provisions of the ordinance will result in unwarranted hardship and injustice.

The attorney added that other points in support of the appeal will be brought out at the hearing.

South End Boys To Have Picnic

A picnic will be held in Constitution park from 10 a. m. to 5 p. m. Saturday for members of the South End Boys Club, which operates under the sponsorship of the South End Republican Club.

The program for the day will include free swimming in the park pool under the direction of Nestor "Ted" Lycott, manager, and ball games, one for older boys and one for younger boys, under the supervision of Graydon Dunlap, athletic supervisor.

A feature of the picnic will be a ceremonial on the stage of the amphitheater at 2 p. m. when new members will be inducted into the club.

In addition, there will be various contests for prizes.

In conjunction with the picnic, a freak animal that looks like half cat and half rabbit will be on exhibit throughout the day in the wildlife building at the park. The animal attracted considerable attention at a pet show held by the boys club a short time ago.

Each member of the club is requested to remind another member of the picnic.

Attaches said the boy's "lower lip was separated from the jaw" and added that six sutures were used to close the wound.

Board Approves Wage Increases For Laborers

Construction Workers To Receive 10 and 12 1-2 Cent Boosts

More than 300 common and semi-skilled laborers employed in the building and construction industry of the Cumberland area will benefit from wage increases granted early this week by the Wage Adjustment Board of the Department of Labor, R. C. Simmons, business agent of Laborers Local 616, AFL, announced yesterday.

The wage boost, which the union official said will become effective at once, increases the hourly wages of common laborers from 75 to 85 cents. Semi-skilled laborers, who now receive 82½ cents hourly will receive 95 cents an hour.

Simmons said the application for the increase was filed with the board in a joint stipulation from contractors of this area and Local 616.

He explained that the increases will affect all union contract jobs here.

The present wage boosts amounts to a 40 cent increase in the rate for common labor since 1941 and a 35 cent hourly boost for semi-skilled workmen.

The union official said the demand for construction laborers here has been only fair recently but added that the prospects of the industry here are "looking brighter". He added that many veterans have been admitted to the union in recent months.

A special meeting of Local 616, Laborers Union, has been called for Sunday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock in Allegany Trades Council hall. Simmons said the meeting, which he termed important, should be attended by all laborers who will receive the increase.

Store Closes Early When Ceiling Sags

Customers were asked to leave Maurice's department store, 57 Baltimore street, about 3 p. m. yesterday and the store was closed for the day when a section of the first floor ceiling sagged three to five inches under the weight of flourescent light fixtures set flush with the ceiling, according to G. E. Mitchell, maintenance man for the store.

The store ordinarily closes at 5 p. m. Monday through Friday, and at 6 p. m. on Saturday.

Mitchell said that the fixtures, each weighing approximately 40 pounds, are part of a single row of lights extending from the front to the back of the first floor ceiling, a distance of about 60 feet. Electricians were called to the store yesterday evening to remove eight of the metal fixtures where the ceiling sagged, and arrangements were made by the Second National bank, which owns the store building, to have a local contractor examine the ceiling early this morning.

The store will reopen at 9 a. m. today as usual, Mitchell said, explaining that there is no danger of injury to customers because the ceiling will be braced and the weight of the fixtures at that section will be removed. Wall lights will provide sufficient illumination to carry on business as usual, he added.

Ralph L. Rizer, acting building engineer, was summoned to the store yesterday afternoon by Mrs. Esther Shendow, store manager. Rizer said that he will make another investigation today after the fixtures have been removed and the ceiling braced.

Mitchell said that the only damage was done to a section of the ceiling toward the front part of the store. The single row of light fixtures is set in the center of the ceiling.

Scarlett Is Acquitted On Theft Charge

John W. Scarlett, 45, Cumberland, charged with violating his parole, yesterday was found not guilty in circuit court by Chief Judge William A. Huster who dismissed a charge that Scarlett had stolen a washing machine from the Sears, Roebuck Store for lack of evidence. Scarlett was represented by Edwin M. Horchler.

Scarlett was first tried during the January, 1944, term of court on a charge of larcency and was paroled for five years. He was then janitor at the Union street county building and was accused of taking a typewriter from an office at night and selling it.

In recent months he had been employed as a shipping clerk at the Sears, Roebuck store, Baltimore street, and was accused of taking the washing machine, officers said.

The machine was sold for $50, according to Assistant State's Attorney Paul M. Fletcher.

Yesterday's hearing started in the morning and continued into the afternoon. A number of witnesses testified after which court ruled that proof was lacking and the charge was dismissed.

Anne Robeson Seeks $7,500 Damages

Asking $7,500 damages, Anne Ruth Robeson, 17, by her father and next friend, Ellis O. Robeson, Frostburg, has filed suit against the Cumberland and Westernport Transit Company and Patsy Parise, 99 East Main street, Frostburg.

The girl, represented by I. Duke Avnet, Baltimore, and Harold E. Naughton, claims she suffered severe injuries while riding in a bus on February 21, 1945. The bus and a car operated by Parise collided on the Mt. Savage road, about one mile east of Frostburg, and both drivers were accused of negligence.

In another suit against the same defendants, John Anderson, of near Frostburg, asks $5,000 damages. Anderson, also represented by Avnet and Naughton, said he was a passenger in the bus and received severe injuries.

Famine Emergency Relief Campaign Efforts Halted

Mayor Thomas S. Post indicated yesterday that he plans no further effort to promote a local famine emergency relief campaign, because little interest has been shown in the drive, scheduled to close at the end of the month.

Contributions to the famine fund which have been received at the Times-News office to date total $185. The mayor expressed hope that the amount will increase considerably before next Monday.

Mayor Post said that apparently the only campaign residents of this area have been interested in was the county primary vote-getting contest which ended with the election Monday.

Among the groups which declined to participate in the famine campaign was the Junior Association of Commerce, an organization composed largely of veterans, which formally turned down a proposal to sponsor the drive by a substantial vote.

Cash contributors to the campaign include: Tri-State Mine and Mill Supply Company $100, Miss Jeannette Bonig $2, C. R. Leatherman $5, Mrs. John G. Shearer $50, Harry W. Fielding $2, William R. Wilson $10, employes of Price Control Board No. 2311, $10; Mrs. J. A. Watson, Little Orleans, $5, and anonymous $1.

Because of the very limited contribution in the form of canned goods, the mayor said the items may be sold and turned into cash.

First Tour Will Be Held Tuesday; Mayor Post Will Greet Group

A series of educational tours, planned in connection with the five-week day camp scheduled to open Monday at Central YMCA, will begin Tuesday, when approximately fifty boys and girls will visit city hall, Central fire station and police headquarters in the Public Safety building.

Robert L. Sisson, general YMCA secretary, said yesterday that Mayor Thomas S. Post will extend an official greeting to the group in his office at 9:30 a. m. Tuesday.

The day camp, the first of its kind to be offered at the "Y", will be open to boys and girls between the ages of 8 and 14. Camp will be held daily Monday through Friday at Central YMCA from 9 a. m. to 4 p. m.

Sisson pointed out that this year marks the first time that boys and girls will make educational tours together. In former years separate tours were conducted. Other activities planned for the day camp program include swimming instruction for beginners and advanced studets; free swimming periods for both groups; softball, archery, tennis, track and games; hobbies and crafts; a water carnival, "olympics" and games tournaments.

Although the day camp opens Monday, the first tour will not be held until the following day to give the campers an opportunity to become acquainted with the program, Sisson said.

The groups will meet at the "Y" at 9 a. m. and leave from there on the tours.

The series of tours will end when the day camp closes Friday, August 2, unless sufficient interest is shown to warrant arranging additional trips, Sisson said.

The Rev. Hirl A. Kester, pastor of Kingsley Methodist church, Williams street, since July, 1940, has been transferred to Waugh Methodist church, Washington, D. C., by Bishop Charles Wesley Flint.

The Rev. Mr. Kester will be succeeded here by the Rev. Samuel E. Rose, whose place the former will take at Waugh church.

Debt Is Liquidated

This debt was liquidated and the mortgage burned June 24, 1942. At the present time the church has $10,000 in war bonds plus an endowment fund of $1,500, and pays a salary of $3,000 a year.

A year ago the church was redecorated and architect's plans are now in hand for further improvements, to be undertaken when building conditions improve.

Government Wage, Price Policy Rapped by Small

By JAMES B. CRAIG

Fred T. Small, who has been engaged in making a somewhat comprehensive study of the government's fluid wage and controlled price policy in its relation to Cumberland area citizens, commented yesterday there is no better example of the difficulties created by such a policy, for labor and industry alike, than in the recent brewery strike in Cumberland, now happily settled.

Mr. Small, who is Allegany county's largest employer in his capacity as plant manager of the Amcelle plant of the Celanese Corporation of America, first became interested in this subject when the administration surrendered what he regarded as a basically sound preconceived postwar plan to protect the consumer for the sake of "political expediency." His first published statement on the matter attracted considerable notice, both locally and elsewhere, and his suggestions were commented on editorially by the New York Times.

Since making his original comments, released after the signing of the first Celanese contract after V-J Day, Mr. Small has delved into the problem in more detail and has made a careful study of the Canadian postwar adjustment plan, which he heartily recommends as a common sense solution of the problem to the authorities in Washington. His remarks published here today represent a continuation of his original statement on the subject of current government practices.

Labor Given Free Rein

"Following the elimination of the War Labor Board, labor was given almost complete freedom in the matter of wage increases, while industry was restricted by a controlled price level for its products", Mr. Small said. "Both were without recourse to any federal agency for the settlement of disputes, such as had determined their relationship under the WLB during the critical war period.

"As was natural, labor proceeded to make the most of its opportunity to force up wages, while industry was compelled to act cautiously in meeting wage demands.

"The situation was intensified when the United States Government's so-called fact finding boards recommended an increase of approximately 18½c an hour for the railroads, steel, automobile and coal industries. This set a national pattern and was immediately used by the various unions as the basis of their wage demands, regardless as to whether or not the particular industry could stand it.

"These factors made it difficult to find a common ground for collective bargaining, particularly where the money was not in the business.

Union Official Says Manager Refuses To Begin Negotiations

Pickets paced yesterday before the Wolfe furniture store and the Pepsi-Cola bottling works as a result of contract disputes between the companies and Local 453, Teamsters and Chauffeurs Union.

C. E. Stutzman, business manager, said five members of the Teamsters union and two clerks affiliated with local 654, Retail Clerks Union, struck yesterday morning after the management of the local furniture store refused to enter into contract negotiations.

Clayton S. Porscher, store manager, said three employes failed to report for work but added, "I know nothing of a labor dispute and nothing of efforts to have the company negotiate with the union".

Must Contact Altoona

Stutzman said late yesterday afternoon that Porscher notified him in a letter that the union would have to contact the Altoona, Pa., home office about any contract. The union has been unable to do so, Stutzman said.

There was no new developments at the Pepsi-Cola plant which was struck Monday after, union officials said, one driver was told he would be laid off.

Stutzman said that the union yesterday presented a contract to the City Ice and Fuel Company for about 25 workers who are affiliated with the Teamsters union here and the Stationery Engineers union in Baltimore. The plant furnishes ice for the B. and O. railroad here.

Report Deadlocks

Negotiations between Cumberland and Westernport bakeries were still deadlocked yesterday over a wage dispute. The AFL union representing the 75 workers dropped its original wage demand from 30 to 15 cents an hour last Saturday and the companies countered with an offer of a 10 cent wage boost. Saturday has been set as a strike deadline by the union.

A company reported last evening there was "nothing new" to report concerning the strike of CIO workers at the Cumberland Macaroni Company which began early this month.

Third Cavalry Unit Spends Night Here

Troop A, Third Cavalry, comprising 112 men in 30 jeeps, 11 Armored cars, three trucks and one wrecker, will leave Cumberland this morning at 0600 hours en route to Parkersburg, W. Va., after spending the night at the state armory.

The unit commanded by Lt. Edward S. Heatherly, formerly of the 11th Cavalry, arrived in Cumberland yesterday at 1240 hours from Fort George G. Meade where the outfit is presently stationed.

While the lustre of the exploits of the Third cavalry with the late General George Patton in Europe are still undimmed, there are only two veterans of those exploits now serving with the troop. They are Sgt. John Tobin and Sgt. Tom Watkins who were with Troop A when the Third cavalry was spearheading Patton's drive across Europe.

Lt. Heatherly recalled last night that the Third cavalry is noted, among other things, for the fact that it fought continuously for 246 days during one phase of the European campaign without relief.

At present, the unit is engaged in training new men and in conducting firing problems in connection with mechanized units. The unit will be in Parkersburg for a parade on June 29 after which it will return to Fort Meade.

J. E. Wetzel Resigns As Chairman of Board Of Zoning Appeals

J. E. Wetzel, defeated candidate for the Republican nomination for county commissioner, has submitted his resignation as chairman of the board of zoning appeals, in a letter to Mayor Thomas S. Post.

Wetzel said that he is resigning, effective immediately, in agreement "with my definite statement during the recent county campaign." Mayor Post said yesterday he will submit the name of a successor soon.

Wetzel succeeded Thomas Lohr Richards as chairman of the three-man board when the latter resigned July 1 with the other members of the original board, George H. Tederick and Bruce D. Smith. All resigned on the ground that the work took too much of their time. The board was established by city ordinance November 27, 1944.

The first meeting of the present board was held last August 13, after the new members were named by Mayor Post. The remaining two members are Raymond G. Messmer and Joseph R. Mantheiy.

Wetzel operates a service station at the corner of Park and Union streets.

Officers Asked To Enforce Maryland Fireworks Law

Enforcement of the state law pertaining to fireworks is being urged over the Fourth of July by the Insurance Department of Maryland in an appeal addressed to all police departements, sheriffs and state's attorneys.

According to Insurance Commissioner Lawrence E. Ensor, it is a distinct violation of the laws of the state to set off fireworks or fireworks displays without first having obtained the approval of the Insurance department. The law requires this approval and the filing of bond with the Insurance department to protect anyone who might be injured.

Ensor said the number of applications for permits to the department this year have increased, there being a tendency to celebrate the fourth on a more extensive scale this year. Anyone putting on such a display without a permit will be procesuted by the department, Ensor said.

Navy Approaches Enlistment Quota, Smith Reports

The navy is rapidly approaching its quota of enlisted personnel and enlistment policies are expected to tighten up soon, Chief Boatswain's Mate Bradford Smith, local recruiter, said yesterday. At the present time, men aged 17 to 30 are permitted to enlist for two years, but Smith reminded that in 1940 the minimum term of enlistment was six years for men 18 and over. How long the present policy will last is not known.

Smith added that his office will be open on Sunday until 5 p. m to give men a chance to enlist before July 1 and thus be eligible for the family allowance allotment for the current term of enlistment.

Seven men enlisted yesterday. They include Charles J. Mercer, Piedmont, W. Va., who served three years and two months in the army in World War II. He was enlisted in the grade of seaman first class.

Others in the group enlisted yesterday were Clyde W. Woods, son of William H. Woods, of Petersburg, W. Va., who enlisted for two years, and Bruce P. Sneathen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ellis T. Sneathen, of 35 Mullins street, who enlisted for two years. He graduated from Fort Hill High School this year.

Bottle Beer Price Cannot Be Raised Until Weekend

OPA Permits Tavern Owner Increase of One Cent a Bottle

Tavern owners who raised the price on bottle beer yesterday were advised last night by Price Control Board attaches to revert to the former price until the end of the week inasmuch as a price increase allowed wholesalers is not effective until then.

Officials of the board also pointed out that the retail price on bottle beer can be increased only one cent per bottle at that time.

Tavern owners who jump the gun on the price increase or who raise the price more than the permitted one cent on the effective date are subject to penalty, the OPA advised.

Consumers Make Inquiry

A survey yesterday disclosed that several places had hiked prices from 11 to 12 cents a bottle to a flat 15 cents, and the Price Control Board reported that although no specific complaints were made, about a dozen telephone calls were received from consumers inquiring about the correct price.

It was pointed out that tavern owners will not be required to pay more for beer until the end of the week at the earliest and that even the one-cent increase cannot be passed along to consumers before that time.

The OPA price increase on drought beer is not effective unless the glass in which it is sold is over eight ounces. All draught beer sold in glasses containing eight or less ounces must remain at 10 cents.

Amusement Tax Charge

The only additional charge for drought beer sold in the smaller glasses is the 20 per cent amusement tax in places which have entertainment such as floor shows or singing and instrumental groups.

Bottle beer prices in Allegany county were based on the price prevailing in March, 1942, and an additional cent rase was granted to cover two tax increases on beverages in recent years. Prices here have ranged from 11 to 15 cents a bottle.

An Eckhart Mines driver involved in a two-car crash in Eckhart yesterday afternoon about 5 o'clock, was fined $10 and costs at a hearing before Magistrate Roy S. Bowman in Cresaptown last evening.

Trooper Ira G. Unger, who investigated, said cars operated by Robert S. Hopkins, 240 Mechanic street, Frostburg, and Thomas Scarpelli, Eckhart Mines, collided at the intersection of Star hill and Porter road and added that both drivers were charged with reckless driving.

Scarpelli was found guilty when arraigned before the Cresaptown magistrate, the trooper said.

Walsh Lists Arguments in Letter to Rizer, Board of Zoning Appeals

In a letter submitted yesterday to Ralph L. Rizer, city engineer, and to the board of zoning appeals, William C. Walsh, attorney for the Schmidt Baking Company, Inc., said that if the board refuses the company's appeal for an occupancy permit to use alley property on Pearre avenue for building an addition to the bakery plant, the action would "result in unwarranted hardship and injustice to the company."

Application for the permit, made Tuesday by Harold A. MacMannis, manager of the company, was denied by Rizer on the ground that the alley, located at the rear of the company's plant at the corner of Frederick street and Pearre avenue, is public property and has not yet been closed.

Board To Meet July 2

MacMannis has filed an appeal from Rizer's decision to the board of zoning appeals, scheduled to hold a meeting July 2. Following a request by the company, the mayor and city council approved a recommendation June 11 to relocate the twelve-foot alley to the far side of a company-owned lot in the rear of the plant, so that an addition which the company proposes to build will become part of the present building and not be located across the alley.

In his letter, Walsh said that building of the addition and installation of machinery, at a total estimated cost of $93,000, would "substantially increase" the assessable basis of the company's property, thus benefiting other taxpayers, and that the number of employes would probably be increased. He also pointed out that construction of the addition, or extension, would provide work for local men.

The attorney added that building of the extension on the present alley property would decrease any annoyance now caused by the present bakery, since residents beyond the lot would have the relocated alley between their property and the new addition.

Ordinance Cited

Walsh cited two sections of the zoning ordinance in support of the company's appeal. One is subsection 3 of section 9, which states that use may be extended to the remainder of a lot which was, at the time the ordinance was passed, part of a business or industrial lot or tract and then intended for such use.

The other is sub-section 7-c of section 20, which states that the board may authorize upon appeal in specific cases such variance from the terms of the ordinance as will not be contrary to the public interest where, owing to special conditions, enforcement of the provisions of the ordinance will result in unwarranted hardship and injustice.

The attorney added that other points in support of the appeal will be brought out at the hearing.

South End Boys To Have Picnic

A picnic will be held in Constitution park from 10 a. m. to 5 p. m. Saturday for members of the South End Boys Club, which operates under the sponsorship of the South End Republican Club.

The program for the day will include free swimming in the park pool under the direction of Nestor "Ted" Lycott, manager, and ball games, one for older boys and one for younger boys, under the supervision of Graydon Dunlap, athletic supervisor.

A feature of the picnic will be a ceremonial on the stage of the amphitheater at 2 p. m. when new members will be inducted into the club.

In addition, there will be various contests for prizes.

In conjunction with the picnic, a freak animal that looks like half cat and half rabbit will be on exhibit throughout the day in the wildlife building at the park. The animal attracted considerable attention at a pet show held by the boys club a short time ago.

Each member of the club is requested to remind another member of the picnic.

Boy Injured in Fall From Horse Improves In Local Hospital

Donald Greise, 6-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Greise, Route 3, was reported in a "better" condition last evening in Allegany hospital where he was admitted Tuesday for observation and treatment of a severely lacerated lower lip and abrasions of the head suffered when he fell from a horse at his father's dairy farm.

Attaches said the boy's "lower lip was separated from the jaw" and added that six sutures were used to close the wound.

His cousin, Donald Mease, 11, also of Route 3, suffered a cut on the back of his head when he fell from the horse at the same time.

Walter W. Johnson, 29, Bowman's Addition, a B. and O. brakeman, was treated Tuesday night after he cut his thumb while opening a can.

Mrs. Lulu Bennett, 41, 461 Columbia street, received treatment Tuesday for first degree burns about the right hand, wrist, forearm and upper right leg. The woman told attendants she spilled scalding water on herself while filling a coffee pot.

Board Approves Wage Increases For Laborers

Construction Workers To Receive 10 and 12 1-2 Cent Boosts

More than 300 common and semi-skilled laborers employed in the building and construction industry of the Cumberland area will benefit from wage increases granted early this week by the Wage Adjustment Board of the Department of Labor, R. C. Simmons, business agent of Laborers Local 616, AFL, announced yesterday.

The wage boost, which the union official said will become effective at once, increases the hourly wages of common laborers from 75 to 85 cents. Semi-skilled laborers, who now receive 82½ cents hourly will receive 95 cents an hour.

Simmons said the application for the increase was filed with the board in a joint stipulation from contractors of this area and Local 616.

He explained that the increases will affect all union contract jobs here.

The present wage boosts amounts to a 40 cent increase in the rate for common labor since 1941 and a 35 cent hourly boost for semi-skilled workmen.

The union official said the demand for construction laborers here has been only fair recently but added that the prospects of the industry here are "looking brighter". He added that many veterans have been admitted to the union in recent months.

A special meeting of Local 616, Laborers Union, has been called for Sunday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock in Allegany Trades Council hall. Simmons said the meeting, which he termed important, should be attended by all laborers who will receive the increase.

Store Closes Early When Ceiling Sags

Customers were asked to leave Maurice's department store, 57 Baltimore street, about 3 p. m. yesterday and the store was closed for the day when a section of the first floor ceiling sagged three to five inches under the weight of flourescent light fixtures set flush with the ceiling, according to G. E. Mitchell, maintenance man for the store.

The store ordinarily closes at 5 p. m. Monday through Friday, and at 6 p. m. on Saturday.

Mitchell said that the fixtures, each weighing approximately 40 pounds, are part of a single row of lights extending from the front to the back of the first floor ceiling, a distance of about 60 feet. Electricians were called to the store yesterday evening to remove eight of the metal fixtures where the ceiling sagged, and arrangements were made by the Second National bank, which owns the store building, to have a local contractor examine the ceiling early this morning.

The store will reopen at 9 a. m. today as usual, Mitchell said, explaining that there is no danger of injury to customers because the ceiling will be braced and the weight of the fixtures at that section will be removed. Wall lights will provide sufficient illumination to carry on business as usual, he added.

Ralph L. Rizer, acting building engineer, was summoned to the store yesterday afternoon by Mrs. Esther Shendow, store manager. Rizer said that he will make another investigation today after the fixtures have been removed and the ceiling braced.

Scarlett Is Acquitted On Theft Charge

John W. Scarlett, 45, Cumberland, charged with violating his parole, yesterday was found not guilty in circuit court by Chief Judge William A. Huster who dismissed a charge that Scarlett had stolen a washing machine from the Sears, Roebuck Store for lack of evidence. Scarlett was represented by Edwin M. Horchler.

Scarlett was first tried during the January, 1944, term of court on a charge of larcency and was paroled for five years. He was then janitor at the Union street county building and was accused of taking a typewriter from an office at night and selling it.

In recent months he had been employed as a shipping clerk at the Sears, Roebuck store, Baltimore street, and was accused of taking the washing machine, officers said.

The machine was sold for $50, according to Assistant State's Attorney Paul M. Fletcher.

Yesterday's hearing started in the morning and continued into the afternoon. A number of witnesses testified after which court ruled that proof was lacking and the charge was dismissed.

Anne Robeson Seeks $7,500 Damages

Asking $7,500 damages, Anne Ruth Robeson, 17, by her father and next friend, Ellis O. Robeson, Frostburg, has filed suit against the Cumberland and Westernport Transit Company and Patsy Parise, 99 East Main street, Frostburg.

The girl, represented by I. Duke Avnet, Baltimore, and Harold E. Naughton, claims she suffered severe injuries while riding in a bus on February 21, 1945. The bus and a car operated by Parise collided on the Mt. Savage road, about one mile east of Frostburg, and both drivers were accused of negligence.

In another suit against the same defendants, John Anderson, of near Frostburg, asks $5,000 damages. Anderson, also represented by Avnet and Naughton, said he was a passenger in the bus and received severe injuries.

Famine Emergency Relief Campaign Efforts Halted

Mayor Thomas S. Post indicated yesterday that he plans no further effort to promote a local famine emergency relief campaign, because little interest has been shown in the drive, scheduled to close at the end of the month.

Contributions to the famine fund which have been received at the Times-News office to date total $185. The mayor expressed hope that the amount will increase considerably before next Monday.

Mayor Post said that apparently the only campaign residents of this area have been interested in was the county primary vote-getting contest which ended with the election Monday.

Among the groups which declined to participate in the famine campaign was the Junior Association of Commerce, an organization composed largely of veterans, which formally turned down a proposal to sponsor the drive by a substantial vote.

Cash contributors to the campaign include: Tri-State Mine and Mill Supply Company $100, Miss Jeannette Bonig $2, C. R. Leatherman $5, Mrs. John G. Shearer $50, Harry W. Fielding $2, William R. Wilson $10, employes of Price Control Board No. 2311, $10; Mrs. J. A. Watson, Little Orleans, $5, and anonymous $1.

Because of the very limited contribution in the form of canned goods, the mayor said the items may be sold and turned into cash.

Educational Trips Planned for "Y" Camp Program

First Tour Will Be Held Tuesday; Mayor Post Will Greet Group

A series of educational tours, planned in connection with the five-week day camp scheduled to open Monday at Central YMCA, will begin Tuesday, when approximately fifty boys and girls will visit city hall, Central fire station and police headquarters in the Public Safety building.

Robert L. Sisson, general YMCA secretary, said yesterday that Mayor Thomas S. Post will extend an official greeting to the group in his office at 9:30 a. m. Tuesday.

Camp To Open Monday

Miss E. Jane Gilchrist, assistant director of girls' work for the YMCA day camp, and Eugene Hopkins, day camp director, will accompany the boys and girls on the tour, Sisson said.

The day camp, the first of its kind to be offered at the "Y", will be open to boys and girls between the ages of 8 and 14. Camp will be held daily Monday through Friday at Central YMCA from 9 a. m. to 4 p. m.

Sisson pointed out that this year marks the first time that boys and girls will make educational tours together. In former years separate tours were conducted. Other activities planned for the day camp program include swimming instruction for beginners and advanced students; free swimming periods for both groups; softball, archery, tennis, track and games; hobbies and crafts; a water carnival, "olympics" and games tournaments.

Although the day camp opens Monday, the first tour will not be held until the following day to give the campers an opportunity to become acquainted with the program, Sisson said.

The groups will meet at the "Y" at 9 a. m. and leave from there on the tours.

The series of tours will end when the day camp closes Friday, August 2, unless sufficient interest is shown to warrant arranging additional trips, Sisson said.

She also asks the custody of their son, one year old. They were married March 30, 1943, in Cumberland, and lived together until May 28, of this year.

Chief Judge William A. Huster has signed an order for Sullivan to pay his wife $75 monthly alimony, pending a decision in the case.

The Rev. Hirl A. Kester Will Become Minister of Waugh Church

The Rev. Hirl A. Kester, pastor of Kingsley Methodist church, Williams street, since July, 1940, has been transferred to Waugh Methodist church, Washington, D. C., by Bishop Charles Wesley Flint.

The Rev. Mr. Kester will be succeeded here by the Rev. Samuel E. Rose, whose place the former will take at Waugh church.

Transferred to Cumberland from Congress Street Methodist church, Washington, following the death of the Rev. W. F. Atkinson, pastor of Kingsley church, in 1940, the Rev. Mr. Kester's transfer to Waugh church will be effective July 15. He will preach his last sermon at Kingsley on July 14.

When the Rev. Mr. Kester came to Kingsley church it was burdened under a debt of $3,600 and paid a salary of $1,800 a year.

Debt Is Liquidated

This debt was liquidated and the mortgage burned June 24, 1942. At the present time the church has $10,000 in war bonds plus an endowment fund of $1,500, and pays a salary of $3,000 a year.

A year ago the church was redecorated and architect's plans are now in hand for further improvements, to be undertaken when building conditions improve.

Membership during the Rev. Mr. Kester's pastorate rose to the present number of about 500, a sizeable increase.

Waugh church is one of the old, established Methodist churches in Washington and has a congregation of about 600 or 700 persons. It is located at Third and A streets, N. E. near the Methodist building and the Supreme Court building.

Named First Chaplain

Before coming to Kingsley church, the Rev. Mr. Kester was pastor of Congress Street church for about 13 years.

While filling the pastorate, he was appointed the first chaplain of the Washington Police and Fire Departments, receiving the former appointment from Maj. Emmert W. Brown, superintendent, and the latter appointment from Fire Chief Stephen Porter. He held both chaplaincies almost seven years, giving them up when he came to Cumberland.

The Rev. Mr. Kester attended the preparatory school at Western Maryland college, Westminster, for two years and then was graduated from Western Maryland college. He studied for the ministry at Westminster Theological seminary for three years and later returned for two years to get his degree of doctor of sacred theology. He was the first man to receive that degree from the seminary.
